Many carryover cancellations included

Carter ready to announce 32 deleted water projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is ready to announce a new "semi-final" list of as many as 32 water projects in danger of cancellation, according to members of Congress who received advance word of the decision. The list, expected to be released today by the White House, includes many carryovers from an earlier, controversial list of 19 projects that Carter deleted from his fiscal 1978 budget recommendations last month. But some water projects, including the large TennesseeTombigbee

Waterway in Alabama and Mississippi, are new — although a number of them appeared on unofficial lists that have been circulating on Capitol Hill in the past few weeks.

Checks with congressional offices late Tuesday disclosed that the following new Corps of Engineer flood control, dam and lake projects are on the list, in addition to Tennessee Tombigbee:

- Tyrone water project, Pa.
- Hillsdale dam, Kan.
- LaFarge Lake and channel improvements, Wis.
- Fulton, Ill., flood control.
- Gallipolis lock and dam, Ohio.
- Red River waterway, Texas Basin, Bayou Bodcau, and a Mississippi Gulf outlet study, all in Louisiana.
- Red River waterway, Texas portions.

Three Bureau of Reclamation projects are also reportedly on the list: the Narrows and Dallas Creek projects in Colorado and the Lyman project in Wyoming.

The bulk of the original 19 jeopardized projects were also reported to be on the new list, including the Central Arizona water project, the Auburn-Folsom south unit, Calif., and Bonnevill project of Central Utah.

In its original list, the administration contended the costs outweighed the projects' benefits. It said scrapping the 19 projects would save almost $289 million in the next fiscal year and up to $5.1 billion in the long run.

The new list is a refinement and narrowing of lists that have been circulating on Capitol Hill in past weeks showing that more than 60 corps and bureau projects had failed initial screening by the administration.

Many members of Congress from both parties strongly protested the deletion of the original 19 projects from Carter's proposed budget.

To soften the blow this time, White House officials late last week began notifying individual members of projects that had passed initial screening — nearly 300 water projects in all.

But the votes on all elements of the package are likely to reflect the partisan assessments of the elected members of Congress.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, complained bitterly about Carter's voter registration proposal to allow persons to vote in federal elections simply by showing up on election day with proof of identity and residence.

Tower charged the proposal "opens the door to abuse." He cited "possibilities of voting tombstones, livestock and aliens."

Surveys show that Republicans, although outnumbered, are more likely to register and turn out to vote than Democrats. Some Republicans fear that most of the new voters the President wants to get to the polls will be Democrats.

Tower also had harsh words for public financing, which he said "perpetrates a hoax on the American people."

Tower contends that public financing gives people the impression that pressure groups would be kept out of political campaigns because they couldn't contribute money.

But Tower said the kind of manpower assistance that organized labor gives Democratic candidates is more valuable than money.

Although Carter's package did not suggest dollar amounts, a bill introduced in the House last week would provide taxpayer funding of up to

Clean-up campaign launched

Junk vehicles, rubbish targets of city effort

By PHIL LEWIS
Record-Herald City Editor
Trash, junk autos, and garbage are the targets of a citywide clean-up effort being planned by Washington C.H. city officials.

Starting Monday, a knock on a Washington C.H. resident's door could be someone informing the occupant that he is in violation of a city "neatness" ordinance. The resident will then be given a 10-day verbal notice to clean up his property.

If the property is not cleaned up in the 10-day period, a 10-day written notice will be issued by Washington C.H. City Manager George H. Shapter. If the offender fails to comply with the written notice, the city warns it will prosecute.

City Inspector Glenn L. Tatman has a stack of 200 written reports listing city property owners who are in violation of the ordinance. He said the list was compiled during the past year, but due to the lack of help, no action has been taken.

With the arrival of spring and a newly hired field inspector trainee, Tatman felt now was the time to begin a clean-up campaign.

Tatman and Vernon Stanforth, the field inspector trainee, have been inspecting residential areas in the city to see, if his stack of violation reports are true. Monday, the door-knocking campaign will begin.

"We've got an ordinance against it (junk-littered property)," Tatman said. "They (violators) should clean it up without having to be told."

Tatman said a similar spring clean-up campaign was instituted two years ago by the city. It was reportedly a success. Last year, Tatman said he was busy with building inspections and issuing building permits, and no clean-up campaign was held.

Thanks to the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program, the city was able to employ ASSISTANT — Vernon Stanforth, 20, of Jeffersonville, has been employed under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act program as an assistant field inspector and will help City Inspector Glenn Tatman with the citywide clean-up campaign.

the 20-year-old Stanforth earlier this month to help Tatman out.

A 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School, Stanforth will be doing his share of door-to-door canvassing next week. Stanforth, who resides in Jeffersonville, was a student at Morehead (Ky.) State University before accepting the position with the city. Last summer, he worked as a youth counselor for the local Community Action Commission's summer program.

THE ORDINANCE, that at least 200 city residents are in violation of, reads:

"No person shall store, place or allow to remain, used building materials, motor vehicles in an inoperative condition, automobile parts, scrap metal, refuse or rubbish on any lot zoned residential within the corporate limits of the city."

Tatman said the unusually cold winter has caused some of the trash build up on residential property. He pointed out that there were several days when refuse removal trucks could not operate and roads were closed to area landfills. However, he added, "Now is the time to clean it up."

He said there are probably 100 junked cars alone, parked on Washington C.H. streets or residential lots, that should be removed.

According to the city code a "motor vehicle in an inoperative condition" means any style or type of motor driven vehicle which is unable to move under its own power due to defective or missing parts.

Used building material is defined as wood, stone, brick, or cement block used or useful in the building of any structure. So, residents with bricks or boards located in their yards are in violation of the code.

Scrap metal is defined as any piece of

Jose Feliciano wins court order

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-songwriter Jose Feliciano has won a court order stopping RCA Records from releasing an album of the guitarist's hits without his approval.

Feliciano filed the suit to stop the release of an album containing his top-selling songs unless he was allowed to approve the selections, the album cover design and album notes.

Thank you every one at Fayette Memorial hospital for the wonderful care I received before and after surgery. Special thanks to Dr. Anderson, Dr. Hancock and everyone who sent flowers and cards. Thank you all.

Juvenile justice reform faces fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill promising sweeping reforms in Ohio's juvenile justice system appears headed for a protracted struggle in the legislature, supporters concede.

"We have been deluged in my office with lots of criticism—and some praise," said Atty. Gen. William J. Brown who drafted the bill, based on recommendations of his Task Force on Juvenile Justice.

"The problem we have is that we don't have a vehicle for treatment of 95 per cent of the juveniles that happen to get in trouble in the state," Brown said Tuesday.

The bill is an attempt to shift emphasis from state facilities to local and regional programs, where "non-dangerous" youths—runaways, truants and "unruly children"—can get less restrictive treatment.

It would also provide a "bill of rights" for juveniles, guaranteeing due process with the right to be represented by an attorney, but not necessarily the right to a jury trial.

The Omnibus Juvenile Justice Reform Act cuts across the entire spectrum, according to Brown, affecting the 25-year-old juvenile code, the 75-year-old court system and the 125-year-old reform school system.

It would phase out over a two-year period the 120-year-old Fairfield School for Boys, near Lancaster, and funnel that institution's budget funds to community programs.

It would place a 200-inmate ceiling on state facilities; increase the role of county prosecutors in dealing with serious offenders; treat neglected, abused and dependent children as victims, rather than offenders; and send youthful traffic offenders to traffic court instead of juvenile court.

The bill would give courts more authority to deal with parents of accused juveniles by ordering family counseling and other remedies aimed at the entire family unit.

The prime sponsor, Judiciary Chairman Harry J. Lehman, also cosponsored a separate bill Tuesday that would permit those victimized by a juvenile theft to file a civil action against parents of the offender. Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, joined Lehman in offering the legislation.

Carter shifted stand on voting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was skeptical.

He saw the flaws in the electoral vote system of choosing presidents. But he was concerned that without it, in a direct, popular election, candidates of the future might ignore the needs and voices of the small states, and play only to the big ones.

His solution, a scant month ago, was a relatively modest reform. He proposed to award the electoral votes of each state automatically to the candidate who carried it.

Water rationing tightened in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Surrounded by drought-stricken counties already rationing water, San Franciscans now will have to cut their use to face what the mayor calls "the most desperate matter facing this city since World War II."

Car washings and full swimming pools are banned in the regulations passed Tuesday by the Public Utilities Commission. The rationing "will be very demanding" for this city's 665,000 residents, Mayor George Moscone said at a commission hearing.

The water conservation policy, which goes into effect April 1, is designed to cut overall consumption by 25 per cent.

Election law

$150,000 for congressional election races.

The other two elements of the Carter package were a constitutional amendment to eliminate the Electoral College and allow direct election of presidents, and a plan to amend the Hatch Act to permit greater participation in partisan politics by federal employees.

Many lawmakers believe the end is near for the Electoral College. Debate on the Hatch Act revision is likely to follow the same party line with a few Democrat defections that occurred when similar proposals were before Congress last year. Strong opposition by then-President Gerald R. Ford blocked their enactment.

Minor fire checked

No loss was reported in a minor fire Tuesday at a construction site on Leslie Trace Court, off Ohio 41-N.

Washington C.H. firemen reported paper was set on fire by children playing with matches near a home under construction at 5:10 p.m. The home is owned by Mark and Mustine, Inc., and the blaze had been extinguished by the time firemen arrived.

Stock prices up fraction

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices, down for four straight sessions, revived a little today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going, and advances took a lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that some of the glamor issues, including IBM, started to recover late in Tuesday's session, an indication the market might rally today.

Early prices today included: Sony Corp., the NYSE's most active issue Tuesday, up 1/4 to 10 3/4. The company reported higher quarterly earnings.

Mattel Inc. was next, down 1/4 to 5 1/2 and Westinghouse Electric was third, unchanged at 17 3/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average gave up 2.58 to 950.96.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 3-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 18.66 million shares, against 18.04 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index lost 1/4 to 54.93.

Job plan gains momentum

Since the private sector has performed sluggishly in getting the jobless back to work, the government has a responsibility to act. It is doing so. The administration, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said the other day, plans to more than double the number of public service jobs for the unemployed and disadvantaged in the current fiscal year - from the 285,000 now available to 600,000.

Happily, it is recognized that make-work jobs of borderline value to the nation are not an acceptable answer. Plans call for putting job recipients to work at useful tasks that will serve the general public welfare.

Marshall made an important point in this connection. Noting that "our forests are in bad shape because there are not enough people to keep them up," he said: "When you consider that there are eight million people unemployed in this country, that doesn't make sense." So some of these people will work in the national forests. Others will be employed on projects to insulate homes of the poor, benefiting both the poor and the national energy-saving effort; still others will work at improving railroad beds that are in poor condition.

Vietnam-era armed service veterans and teen-agers will be first in line for such public service jobs. Marshall also looks to improving "the linkages between the public and private sectors," with employment and training geared to move workers into private jobs as they open up. The program now gaining momentum is no panacea. It does promise to significantly reduce the immediate problem and at the same time smooth the transition to higher general employment levels.

Getting the White House staff home

From the number of television sets President Carter had hauled out of the White House, it sounded as though the Republicans turned the place into a motel. Who watched? When? Why? L.B.J. was famous for the three-set console on which he really could take in three network news programs simultaneously. But the only time I can recall watching the tube was during a presidential speech or, agony of agonies, news conference. However, if Mr. Carter really wants to improve efficiency and get his staff home to their families, his next step should be to eliminate about half the phones.

At the risk of blowing the gig, perhaps I should take the opportunity to explain to government "widows and orphans" that a substantial hunk of the time not spent at home by high government officials is dedicated to seeming important. In the White House this often takes the form of spending ungodly hours at your desk engaged in telephonics. In the various departments upwardly mobile bureaucrats engage in the same practice and desperately hope that the President will call at, say, 9:30 p.m. and find them AT WORK.

If you assume, as I do, that normally the President of the United States is not a nut, hanging around the shop will hardly impress him. In emergency situations a number of staff people are on call and put in 36 hour days - I averaged about four hours of sleep a night during the Middle Eastern crisis of 1967. But the President, who works at home, should understand that his aides can do the same thing. Moreover, he can call you at home on a secure line if he wants your counsel, or your hide.

In short, widows and orphans, the fault may lie not in The Man, but in yours. Leaving aside the conscienceless rogues who do not enjoy their wives and children, I suspect most could be home for dinner most evenings. And, crises aside, there is no excuse for missing a birthday party. In Feb., 1967, for example, "Simon Legree" Johnson scheduled a little staff get-together at 8:30 on the evening we were celebrating our daughter's birthday. I called him, explained the situation, and asked to be excused - he gave me a present for her.

Others, mostly junior aides, were stunned that I didn't hang around to have a drink with the Leader of the Free World. They were equally startled when I kept avoiding Cabinet meetings. Didn't sitting in a chair along that wall give me a sense of Power? Of course not - nothing important ever happened at a Cabinet session; they were dull, and they reminded me of faculty meetings.

The President did note my devious absences and asked me about them. An honest question deserved an honest answer: I politely conveyed my views. He nodded quietly, pulled his ear, agree with me - and then gave the job of living them up! From then on, Walt Rostow, Harry McPherson, Doug Cater and I would gather in what I called the "Acrobats for the Cabinet" caucus) before each meeting to try to brighten the agenda. The hell of this was I then had to attend, and we didn't improve them much.

Organizing meetings provides another great ego ladder and a spectacular way to kill time. The scenario here is that a staff member learns the President is concerned, say, about the problems of nutrition in the Third World. Instantly he is on the phone to State, A.I.D., U.S.I.S., Agriculture, the Weather Bureau, the National Institute of Health, et al, calling a meeting in his office on the topic. Everybody sits around, pontificates and a "Memo for the President" is born.

The participants leave a bit mystified - for six months they have been on an inter-agency committee drafting an elaborate report on the topic. How did this guy get in the act? Maybe he's important? Maybe he'll give us a direct line! Anyway, we'd better spread the word to plug him in - it won't do us any harm to have a friend in the WH. Let's invite him to our next meeting.

What with telephonics, meetings, and sundry caballing, one can easily kill 12 hours a day in the White House. I rarely worked less than 12 hours, but seldom more than eight in my office. Every night I would try to be home by 7, have a relaxed family dinner, then read the stuff I brought with me until 11 or 12. If the President wanted me, he knew which button to push, and frankly I never knew or cared whether people thought me "important." I just knew I earned my salary, the man I worked for took my opinions seriously, and I saw my family.

YOU BORN TODAY, unlike many other Aries, have been gifted with the traits needed to make a great success in the financial world. Yet here we find a paradox since, while you have a great yearning for the material things in life - and the ability to acquire them - you often lose out through sheer impulsiveness and impracticality. Your eyes may be wide open to gainful opportunity, but you often rush into new ventures without careful preparation and you allow overenthusiasm to dim your foresight. Once having learned self-control in this respect, however, you should be very successful. Aside from finance, other fields in which you could excel include the law, statesmanship, music, the theater and literature.

Retired admiral now super-plumber

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Worth Bagley used to command fleets of U.S. Navy warships and thousands of sailors as part of the nation's defense forces.

Now the man who was the Navy's youngest full admiral has a smaller command and a different defense responsibility - leaky plumbing, for instance, instead of enemy ships.

Bagley, 52, commands house painters, electricians and plumbers now instead of men and ships. He says he likes it better than his last job - vice chief of naval operations.

The home-service company he started last April 1 with an investment of $7,000 is already grossing at a rate of about $125,000 a year. It has put to work 21 retired or soon-to-retire chief petty officers, one ex-captain and the Navy's former top enlisted man.

"It's an idea that was in my mind several years before I retired," Bagley said Friday of his Serravallo Co.

In 1973, at the age of 48, Bagley was made a full admiral. He was commander of U.S. naval forces in Europe and the Mediterranean. That year, he led a Navy task force which faced down a reinforced Soviet fleet of more than 100 ships during the Arab-Israeli war. Then he spent six months at the Pentagon as vice chief of naval operations.

In 1975, he became eligible for retirement and moved here with his wife, mother and three teen-age children.

Bagley called Bob McCabe, who was his chief of staff when Bagley was commander of Cruiser-Destroyer Flotilla 7 in San Diego in 1969-70. McCabe was finishing a master's degree in business administration.

Then he talked with retired or retiring chief petty officers who were Navy technicians with at least 20 years' experience.

The seven men who signed on "all have technical schooling equal or superior to that in civilian schools and spent their whole careers in that work," Bagley said in an interview. "We've taken the very best, not a one who couldn't make more money elsewhere."

As vice presidents, he got McCabe and Jack Whittet, who was the navy's top enlisted man for five years as master chief in the Pentagon.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

at a wrong match

DEAR ABBY: I just slapped my son and realized it was because he looks like his father. I am trapped in a miserable marriage with three children (all accidents.) I married more out of stubbornness than love. My parents and even friends told me not to marry him, but I wouldn't listen.

When we were going together, he'd borrow money from me and "forget" to pay it back. Now all the money is "his" money. He never takes me out, saying he can't afford it, but he always has enough to entertain his buddies.

My second baby was 3 and my third was on the way before I got a washing machine. (And then it was his mother's old one.)

He used to twist my arm, now he hits me regularly. He tells me what to do, what to say and even what to wear.

I wish I had listened, but it's too late now.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: It may be too late for you, but it's not too late for girls presently involved with fellows who fit your husband's description.

A tip to girls "in love" with a man who everyone thinks is wrong for her: Listen and take a good long second look at him. And a third. And then a fourth.

(P.S. You didn't ask for any advice, but if you're interested in getting your head together, you're tired of being a punching bag and have had it with accidental pregnancies, write again. Have I got a letter for you!)

DEAR ABBY: Our granddaughter just completed her nursery school term at St. Edmunds Episcopal Church, and each parent was given a copy of some words of wisdom.

I hope you will find it worthy of printing in your column.

Reasoner-Walters split continues

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC has denied a published report that a decision has been reached patching up the relationship between newscasters Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters.

The New York Post said that the co-anchors of the evening news show would stay together, with Roone Arledge promoted to head the news and documentary operations in addition to sports.

A network spokesman said Tuesday that no decision has been made on news division changes and that he did not know when one would be made. But there was speculation that ABC-TV President Fred Pierce would announce any changes when the network's affiliates meet next month.

Contract signed for services

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Economic and Community Development has signed a $50,000 contract with the Cincinnati Minority Contractors Assistance Corp. to provide services to minority contractors in the Cincinnati area.

Director James A. Duerk said Tuesday.

"The contract will help to develop and strengthen Cincinnati's minority contractors by providing them with management, technical, bonding and financial assistance," Duerk said.

CMCAC will serve as a clearinghouse for local, state and federal bid requests for construction jobs by serving as a depository for information and job invitations for those governmental bodies.

Gay rights push sparks violence

MIAMI (AP) — Violence is marring what was supposed to be a peaceful electoral solution to Miami's growing dispute over an ordinance that forbids discrimination against homosexuals in housing and employment.

The car of a Cuban-born gay activist was firebombed Tuesday.

Another activist committed suicide last week after receiving phone threats in response to a radio show he did.

Others, on both sides of the issue, report numerous threats.

Dade County's 1.5 million residents are scheduled to decide in a June 7 referendum whether the ordinance will remain on the books.

Now there are indications the referendum may not be held. County commissioners are being urged to vote to overturn the ordinance in their April 5 meeting.

Manuel Gomez, 38, a member of the Dade County Coalition for the Humanistic Rights of Gays, took part in a Monday news conference held by supporters of the ordinance. He later appeared on a Spanish-language television station.

His car was destroyed the next day. "I know how anti-gay the Latin community is," Gomez said. "It seems I'm the first Cuban to talk openly about gayness. It (the firebombing) is a super-macho reaction. The community isn't talking about U.S.-Castro relations anymore. Now, they're just attacking homosexuals."

Gomez is mourning his friend, 28-year-old Ovidio Ramos, who killed himself last week after becoming depressed at response to the gay rights issue.

"We were on radio together and we received several injurious telephone calls from people ignorant and bigoted," Gomez said. "He got very depressed."

"I told him, 'Don't pay attention. It's incredible that people who call themselves Christians could say things like that.' The following day he didn't go to work and he killed himself Wednesday."

2 regulations take effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are a struggling musician trying to pay for your leased clarinet, or if you can't get credit simply because of your color or religion or because you're over 65, you may find comfort in two new consumer laws.

The Consumer Leasing Act, one of the two laws taking effect today, is designed to make leasing companies let customers know exactly the terms of their lease contracts before they sign on the dotted line.

The second new consumer protection law extends three-year-old prohibitions against credit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. The new

MRS. CHRISTOPHER G. THOMPSON

Susan Lynn Combs is bride of Christopher Thompson

The Sabina Church of Christ was the setting Saturday for the marriage of Miss Susan Lynn Combs and Christopher Gordon Thompson. Two seven-branched candelabra flanked by baskets of blue carnations and yellow mums made the decorations at the altar.

John Byard, minister of the church, performed the double-ring ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Combs of Sabina, and the son of Mr. R. Dale Thompson, 1578 Flakes Ford Road, and the late Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. Don Wagner of Cincinnati was the organist, and Mrs. Hal Stallings of Middletown, the vocalist. They presented "We've Only Just Begun," "Sunrise, Sunset," and "If."

Miss Combs' gown was of Windsor polyester knit trimmed in Venice lace and simulated pearls. It had long sleeves trimmed in lace with a high rise waistline, which she fashioned herself. She carried a bouquet of white roses, with blue and yellow carnations. Her finger-tip veil was full gathered to a cap. She was given in marriage by her parents.

Miss Eileen Fisher was maid of honor, Miss Charrisa Grove was the bridesmaid, and Miss Sherry Ford, the flower girl. All wore light blue polyester knit dresses with square necklines trimmed in Venice lace. Each attendant carried a yellow rose, and the flower girl a basket of yellow rose petals.

Steve Shoultz of Chillicothe served as best man, and seating the wedding guests were Jim Combs, Mike Combs and Brian Combs, all brothers of the bride.

The bride's mother chose a long blue knit gown with matching jacket for her daughter's wedding.

The social hall of the church was the setting for the reception which followed. The cake served as the centerpiece of the bride's table, surrounded with daisies. Mrs. Charles Moore, Mrs. Arnold Fisher, Mrs. Charles Grove, and Miss Jane Anderson, all of Sabina, were hostesses.

For traveling the new Mrs. Thompson wore a blue pin-striped knit dress with white cuffs and collar. The couple will reside at 152 N. Jackson St., Sabina. Both are employed at Allied Technology, Inc., Sabina, and are attending night courses at Southern State College.

Layette shower honors Mrs. Coil

AFS students present program

Miss Patty Ulloa of Colombia and Jean Winiger of Switzerland were the guest speakers at the March meeting of American Association of University Women. Patty, a senior at Miami Trace High School, and Jean a senior at Washington High School, gave slide presentations of their home countries.

Patty described her country as being a mixture of the very old and the modern. Many old buildings can be seen with the extremely modern nearby. Also, there is a strange combination of traditional and modern dress in the large cities.

Jean portrayed his country as one of diversity. Four languages are spoken and there is a variety in landforms. He also showed the rich heritage of country found in old castles, museums, and the celebrating of folk festivals.

Mrs. Walter Parsley, president, conducted the business meeting. She reminded the members of the upcoming AAUW Legislative Day on March 23, in Columbus, Ohio. Also the next meeting will be a luncheon at the Chillicothe Country Club on April 2. The Chillicothe Branch will assist in the honoring of our State Division President, Mrs. Laura S. Miller of Bay Village, the guest speaker. Our own local past presidents will be special guests, also.

Mrs. Donald Ginn, chairman of the Educational Foundation Program, reported on the National Association EFP, and recommended that the local AAUW tribute to this. Mrs. Ginn was instructed to follow the local Branch's policy of contributing.

There are a few copies of the Historic Bicentennial cookbooks yet for sale. The Hostess, Mrs. Donald Foster, and her assistants, Mrs. Donald Pierce, and Miss Sara Johnson were thanked by the president. Other members present were Mrs. Jack Montgomery, Mrs. Stanley Scott, Mrs. Robert Decker, Mrs. W.O. Fullerton, Mrs. Delbert Marshall, Mrs. E.F. ## First Christian Church setting for exchange of marriage vows

The first Christian Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Denise Elaine Matthews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Matthews, S. Fayette St., and Charles Thomas Meriweather, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Meriweather, 416 Glenn Ave.

Mr. Ray Russel, minister of the church, and Mr. Richard Matthews, brother of the bride, performed the double-ring ceremony. The candelabra entwined with white gladioli and baby's breath and greenery, accented with bows graced the altar. Aisle and pew decorations were bows with candelabra. Candles with greenery were in the windows.

Mrs. Mary Sue Spengler presented a program of wedding selections which included the Wedding March and the Recessional. Miss Anita Pruitt, vocalist, sang "It Seems I've Always Loved You," "You're a Gift," "We Have Love," and "The Lord's Prayer." Miss Elaine Stookey was at the piano.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Dale, Miss Matthews was wearing a gown of sheer polyester organza with taffeta underlay, lavishly trimmed in nylon and acetate Chantilly-type lace. The gown had an empire bodice, with stand-up collar and long sleeves with full skirt. She wore a necklace, a gift from the groom. Her headpiece was of Chantilly lace to match the gown, and held an elbow-length veil of illusion. She carried a cascade arrangement of white miniature carnations with red sweetheart roses and baby's breath on a Bible.

Miss Kristi Meriweather, maid of honor, and sister of the groom, and bridesmaids, Mrs. Dale Matthews, Mrs. Marvin Matthews, wore identical velvet gowns of A-line styling, with short matching jackets. The honor attendant wore burgundy, and the bridesmaids were in blue and green. Each had a matching floral headpiece which matched her dress, and also a cross necklace, a gift from the bride.

Jeff Sheridan served as best man for Mr. Meriweather. The groomsmen were Royce McGhee and Marvin Matthews, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Matthews chose for her daughter's wedding a long gown of blue knit with lace bodice and long sleeves, with a corsage of white carnations and red roses. The groom's mother wore a formal length gown of burgundy Quiana with maribou trim. She had a corsage of white miniature carnations.

Miss Debi Srofe presided at the guest book, and Miss Loretta Jette and Miss Tina Russell presided at the gift table.

Hostesses for the reception held in the church social room were Mrs. Robert Matthew, and Misses Tammy and Sue Pope, Miss Diana Stackhouse, Mrs. James Garringer and Mrs. Sam Trout, who baked the wedding cake. The cake, five tiered, was topped with a miniature bridal couple, and decorated with blue and pink roses. Greenery encircled the cake, and punch bowls and candles completed the setting.

The couple is residing at 317 Gibbs Ave.

'Roots' cast holds reunion party

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chicken George and Kizzy didn't make it, but most of the other characters from "Roots" attended the reunion party for the people who created television's most-watched show.

The invitation for the dinner, hosted at The Bistro in Beverly Hills by executive producer David Wolper, said it was "the first opportunity for all of us and our friends to get together since that wild week we made television history."

Euphoria flowed with the wine well into the early hours Tuesday. Leslie Uggams, who played Kizzy, and Ben Vereen, who had been Kizzy's son Chicken George, were absent, but everyone present from author Alex Haley to LeVar Burton, who played the young Kunta Kinte, shared the joy.

Before the dancing, Wolper conducted what resembled a witness session at a gospel meeting. Actors, writers and directors took the microphone to testify what "Roots" had meant to them.

The most moving speech was by author Haley, who told of his 12-year quest for his origins and how the TV dramatization evoked "a national, galvanic response." He concluded: "The Lord may not come when you expect him to, but he will always be on time."

A reporter asked several participants the question: "How did 'Roots' affect your lives?" Here are the responses:

Wolper: "I had expected to have an easy year after selling my company to Warner Brothers. Now I'm busier than ever trying to keep up with the response to 'Roots,' including thousands and thousands of letters. And I'm starting on 'Roots II.'"

LeVar Burton, Kunta Kinte: "It has assured me that I can do anything I want to do for the rest of my life — creatively or otherwise."

Chuck Connors, who played Massa Tom Moore: "After 23½ years in the business, producers are telling me, 'Hey, I didn't know you could act!'"

George Stafford Brown, Tom the blacksmith: "The fun was in the doing. I haven't felt the aftermath yet. They aren't writing parts for black actors yet."

Callaghan makes deal with liberals

LONDON (AP) — Indications that Prime Minister James Callaghan has made a deal for the support of the Liberal party improved his Labor government's chances of surviving a no-confidence vote in the House of Commons tonight.

Callaghan met three times Tuesday with Liberal leader David Steel in his search for votes to stave off a defeat that would force the Laborites into a general election they probably would lose.

Liberal sources described the third meeting, an hour-long, late-night session, as "detailed negotiations."

Political commentators said Callaghan was expected to conclude an agreement today giving the middle-road Liberals a say in formulating government policy in exchange for the third party's crucial 13 votes in Commons.

The 13 Liberal votes would give the government a safe majority of 17 and the promise of two and a half years more in office, until October, 1979.

The prime minister said in a television interview that he was willing to collaborate with any other parties "on a basis that preserves both our self-respect and their self-respect."

Some political commentators interpreted this to mean that Callaghan and Steel had reached a compromise that would keep Labor's economic policy intact but would guarantee the Liberals influence in shaping other policies, particularly on home rule for Scotland and Wales.

However, the deputy leader of the Liberal party, John Pardoe, said he thought an agreement was doubtful.

"We're asking for certain specific things which Mr. Callaghan feels he cannot give," Pardoe said.

The Times of London said there was a growing belief in political circles that the government would scrape through.

The no-confidence motion was introduced last week by Conservative party leader Margaret Thatcher after the government suffered a 230-0 defeat on a procedural motion to avert a vote on government spending cuts opposed by left-wing Laborites.

Etiquette remains part of life

CINCINNATI (AP) — Although it no longer takes 70 pages to describe the correct way to get through a dinner party, etiquette is still very much a part of the American way of life, according to an expert on the subject.

"Etiquette is no longer just a case of what you ought to do, but it's more practical now," said Alice Vestal, a librarian at the University of Cincinnati, who recently wrote an article on the subject for the Cincinnati Historical Society.

"People are still concerned with the proper thing to do for certain occasions. After all, all etiquette is doing to others what you want others to do to you."

Sometimes doing unto others became quite a chore, Mrs. Vestal said.

During the late 19th century, etiquette books became increasingly geared for the middle and upper classes and developed ever-more complicated rituals.

"In some of the books, there was considerable discussion about which corner of the calling card should be folded down and in one book, it took 70 pages to discuss getting through a dinner party," Mrs. Vestal said.

"In those days women did not work, and were presumed to be interested in this sort of thing. So they became very much involved in the ritual of etiquette."

"Nowadays, women are supposed to work—either at the office or doing volunteer work. It's simply not possible to have elaborate rituals, so etiquette has become much more practical."

The role of women was not the only force behind the change in trends of etiquette, Mrs. Vestal said.

Nationalism during the early 1800s

caused Americans to thumb their noses at the European social graces.

One book found European styles of behavior as being "corrupted by aristocracy and not at all suited to a land of equality."

The etiquette rules that governed life during America's first century were often deeply grounded in practicality.

These rules dealt with bathing (one pint of water used daily); dress, (undergarments were to be changed twice a week in summer) and smoking.

One manual asked: "would any man like to kiss a lady with a quid in her cheek and her lips running over with the poisoned and poisoning saliva?"

Although many of the rules of etiquette were aimed at women, men were also very much a part of the rules of society, Mrs. Vestal said.

During February

Blazes, other incidents cause $24,000 in damage

Forty-four fires and other related incidents caused as estimated $24,685 in damage in Washington C.H. and Union Township during February.

The monthly report prepared by Washington C.H. Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen disclosed 39 of the fire incidents were in the city and five in Union Township.

Damage in Washington C.H. totaled $4,185 and the estimate in Union Township was $20,500.

Firemen investigated a total of five building fires, three in Washington C.H. and two in Union Township, during the month.

Denen reported that hazardous conditions checked by firemen were topped by 16 gas leaks or spills. Others included four incidents of short electrical equipment, three excessive heat situations and one carbon monoxide check.

Local firemen were also summoned six times for smoke or odor removal and twice to discontinue water service.

"Good intent" calls included in Denen's report were two smoke scares in the city and in Union Township and one incident in the city when steam, or another gas, was mistaken for smoke. One miscellaneous "good intent" call was also checked.

One false call (a system malfunction) was reported in Union Township during the month.

Regular firefighters on duty responding to emergency runs were 161 in the city and 23 in Union Township; regular firefighters off duty were 40 and 16; volunteers responding were 56 and 24; the total average volunteer response per fire was 1.43 and 4.80; the total average off duty regular response per fire was 1.02 and 3.20 and the total average regular and volunteer response per fire was 6.58 and 12.60.

Fire department equipment worked a total of 30.15 hours during the month, 22.60 in the city and 7.55 hours in the township. Fire equipment traveled 111.2 miles during February, 53.3 in Washington C.H. and 57.9 in Union Township.

One fireman was injured while battling a blaze during the month, the report stated.

Other fire department activities during the month included a Washington C.H. Fireman's Association meeting Feb. 14 and a class instructed by Lt. Cecil D. Seaman on scuba diving Feb. 16 at the Washington C.H. Middle School.

Cardinal kidnaped, murdered

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP) — Emile Cardinal Biayenda, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Brazzaville, was kidnaped and murdered by three persons Tuesday night, the government announced today.

A communique issued by the ruling military committee of the Congolese Workers' party gave no details and no indication of the identity of the killers.

In Rome, a Vatican spokesman expressed "profound consternation" at the assassination of the African cardinal. Vatican sources said Cardinal Biayenda was the last official to visit President Marien Ngouabi before he was assassinated last Friday.

Radio Brazzaville announced Tuesday that former President Alphonse Massamba-Debat, whom Ngouabi overthrew in 1968, had confessed to organizing a plot to kill Ngouabi and regain control of the government.

Cardinal Biayenda, 50, was born in Mpangala, near Brazzaville, in what was then the French Congo. He was ordained a priest in 1958 and became archbishop of Brazzaville in 1971. Pope Paul VI made him a cardinal in 1973.

The cardinal is the second African archbishop to die a violent death this year. The Anglican archbishop of Uganda, Janani Luwum, was killed in February shortly after he was arrested on charges of plotting against President Idi Amin.

Zoning restrictions targeted by bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Restrictive zoning ordinances that keep homes for retarded citizens out of residential areas would be knocked out by the state under a bill now under Senate study.

The bill drew an overflow crowd of about 200 Tuesday night as the Senate Education and Health Committee started hearing testimony.

Sen. J. Timothy McCormack, D-31 Euclid, said the crowd consisted of persons from all over Ohio who deplore the fact that many communities allow the mentally retarded—or developmentally disabled, in legal terminology—to live in "dumps."

His bill, he said, provides an alternative to state institutionalization for thousands of developmentally disabled citizens.

"This would be accomplished by prohibiting discriminatory zoning restrictions as they apply to residential care facilities for the developmentally disabled," McCormack told the committee.

Society today, he said, often has ignored the problems of retarded citizens, especially after they have grown into adulthood, to 40 or 50 years of age, and had their own parents die off.

McCormack said "good faith" efforts are being made in some communities to properly house retarded citizens but those making the effort "are turned down or discouraged before reaching city council chambers. Among these are Delaware, Mansfield, Pataskala, Trumbull County, Portage County, Zanesville and New Philadelphia," he said.

He added: "Unfortunately, some communities have outrightly prohibited the location of these homes in their neighborhoods. The most recent case of this outright prohibition was in a major Cleveland suburb, Lakewood."

Propose personal alarms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A design engineer, who recently received his master's degree at Ohio State University, has proposed development of a battery-powered personal alarm system to aid the handicapped.

A conceptual model for the personal alarm system was developed by Douglas E. Bachman in his work toward the degree in industrial design.

Bachman said in his thesis that the system would employ a collar-type apparatus which, when activated by certain neck movements, transmits a signal to a separate alarm unit.

The device, to be powered by a small battery, would send a radio signal to a secondary unit. The second unit would sound an alarm, Bachman said, which would let others know someone needs help.

"There is a trend toward greater independence among the handicapped," Bachman said.

More often, Bachman said, the severely handicapped are living and working in the community. Away from a sheltered environment, they face the hazard of an accident occurring when there is no help nearby, he said.

Bachman said he interviewed 40 handicapped individuals and found they shared a common concern over the need to obtain emergency help.

"Their sense of independence was tempered by the realization that they could become virtually helpless in certain situations," he said.

The collar device would allow those without control of their hands or arms to signal for help.

Bachman said he is looking into the possibility of manufacturing the device which would weigh six ounces or less.

He said he has not yet produced a prototype.

Outlook for 1977 good, speaker says Rotarians get economic forecast

Washington C.H. Rotary Club members received an economic forecast during their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Pat Campbell, an assistant vice president and research director for the Ohio Company, told Rotarians that the nation's economic outlook for the remainder of 1977 is quite favorable.

The devastating 1977 winter will definitely "leave its mark on the economy" and has been the reason for recent caution in the stock market, Campbell explained.

The investment firm official said that the Carter administration has not been in office "long enough to get much accomplished." He also said he believed that President Carter's proposed economic stimulus package which provides for $50 rebates "will not mean very much."

The future of the nation's economy depends primarily on the type of national energy policy the Carter administration presents, he said.

One factor affecting the economy's lack of expansion during the past three years has been government borrowing, Campbell pointed out. He said that since 1974 the government, through borrowing, has competed with private corporations for the American dollar and has crowded the corporations out of the market.

Campbell reviewed with Rotary Club members some predictions concerning the economy he has reached through research. He said:

- the economy will do well during the remainder of the year despite government meddling;
- that labor costs will increase only about four per cent which could possibly hold the inflationary rate at five per cent;
- that there will be no drastic increase in the cost of living index;
- that banks currently have ample reserves for loan purposes and that interest rates will continue low; and
- that the Dow Jones average will increase in coming months.

He also pointed out that in recent months consumer and government spending have increased. New housing construction has also increased. He also predicted an increase in automobile sales.

The meeting was conducted by club president Dr. George Pommert. The program was arranged by Philip Moseley.

Woman, 88, only jogs mile per day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eula Weaver isn't as young as she used to be, so she's reduced her daily regimen of jogging to just one mile a day. After all, she is 88.

When it rains, and she can't jog the full mile around a high school track near her suburban Santa Monica home, she mounts the stationary bicycle in her living room and pedals 10 miles or so.

She also goes to a local gym three times a week and pedals 10 miles before dinner.

Mrs. Weaver suffered a stroke a decade ago and was nearly paralyzed. "I could hardly walk at all," she said, explaining the effects of the stroke combined with arthritis in her hands and knees.

Doctors gave her two choices — spend the rest of her life as an invalid, being hand-fed and clothed, or get out of her rocking chair and start walking again, no matter how painful.

It didn't take her long to decide. She vowed she would "try everything in this world to get back to normal."

Following her doctor's advice, she started slowly, walking gingerly at first, pushing herself even though it hurt, and deadening some of the pain with pills.

She moved from Illinois to southern California to be near her grandson, went on a strict health-oriented diet and started running. Soon, she was jogging two miles a day.

Mrs. Weaver was induced in 1975 to enter the National Senior Olympics held in Irvine, 50 miles south of Los Angeles.

"I jogged there three years and got six gold medals, one for Saturday and one for Sunday (each year)," she said.

Hitskip checked

ReaLemon court hassle becoming more fascinating

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The ReaLemon case gets more fascinating. Now the U.S. Commerce Department argues that an opinion by a Federal Trade Commission judge could result in "palming off" goods on an unsuspecting public.

Not only that, it suggested, but the opinion by the FTC's chief administrative law judge, if left standing, might change common law, weaken trademarks and conceivably even promote a monopoly.

All this about that little green bottle of reconstituted lemon juice that almost every shopper has seen on grocery store shelves. It's in almost every one of them; it is overwhelmingly successful, dominating some markets.

That's part of the problem. Last September, Judge Daniel H. Hanscom of the FTC ruled that Borden Inc., whose product it is, unlawfully maintained a monopoly in the reconstituted lemon juice market.

He said Borden should license its competitors.

In his opinion this could be accomplished by having Borden accept a royalty of one-half of one per cent. For that price, competitors too could make and sell ReaLemon, and even use the name Borden to prove it.

Borden officials were agast. They denied they used discriminatory pricing and unfair promotional tricks to damage the market for others. In effect, they said the product won its dominance on quality alone.

At any rate, they added, it was unfair of Hanscom to limit the market as he had. ReaLemon, said Borden, competed not just with other reconstituted lemon juices, but with fresh lemons, lemon extract and the like.

The Commerce Department looked at the decision for a few months and on March 7 intervened in the case, which still must be decided by the full commission. It seemed concerned mainly that trademarks could be damaged.

"The administrative law judge's initial decision," it noted, "orders the compulsory licensing of the ReaLemon trademark based on a precedent of compulsory patent licensing." But, it said, a patent isn't a trademark.

Unlike trademarks, "patents are government grants, provided for by the Constitution, which give inventors the right to exclude others from making, using, or selling their inventions for 17 years," said the department, which regulates both.

"Conversely, trademarks are acquired by using the mark in commerce and represent the goodwill accorded to the owner of the mark by consumers," it said.

A patent is a government grant. A trademark is established by the owner of the mark and receives government protection to prevent the public from becoming confused or deceived. But licensing a trademark would do just that, it said.

The basic function of the trademark is to indicate the origin of a product, the Commerce Department brief continued, and to do this the trademark proprietor must have exclusive right to the mark.

Find flaws in measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At its first hearing on a House-passed mechanics' lien bill, the Senate Judiciary Committee uncovered Tuesday what some members described as a major flaw.

The House version, in a definition section, permits liens to be filed against the owners of new, previously unoccupied homes, and those not using their newly acquired homes for their personal residence, after the full purchase price has been paid.

Rep. John D. Thompson Jr., D-15 Cleveland, said the language apparently was unintentional in his House measure which seeks to protect homeowners from having to pay a second time for prior construction or repair work.

Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-15 Columbus, vice chairman of the judiciary committee, said he would offer an amendment to correct the House version. Thompson said he had no objection.

Hearings on the proposal, similar to one vetoed last year by Gov. James A. Rhodes, will continue next week.

Major bills advance in Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bills affecting schools, supermarkets, license plates and elections advanced in the legislature Tuesday.

The Senate approved 33-0 and sent the House a bill that helps school districts work out legal problems that resulted from this winter's school closings.

Senators added their approval to a House measure that increases guarantees for college student loans from 90 to 100 per cent, and makes nonresident students eligible for the program.

It goes back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

Otherwise, key actions came in subcommittees.

A subcommittee of the House Commerce and Labor Committee reached agreement on a once-vetted bill that requires individual marking of items in supermarkets switching to computer pricing codes.

Also in the House, a highways subcommittee recommended approval of a widely debated bill that revamps

Ohio's auto license plate distribution system and permits purchase by mail for a $1.50 extra fee.

Across the Statehouse, an elections subcommittee worked on its final draft of an election reform bill that would permit election day registration of voters and call for other changes making it easier to vote.

Buoyed by President Carter's endorsement of the concept last weekend, sponsoring Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, said Ohioans would be allowed to vote after showing acceptable identification such as a driver's license, if his bill passes.

Carter's endorsement was for federal legislation that would provide for virtually the same thing except it would only cover presidential, vice presidential and congressional balloting.

Sen. M. Morris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland, carried the school closing legislation which enables school districts to cite weather as well as fuel shortages as a legal reason for halting classes up to 15 days a year.

An earlier measure, enacted at the height of the winter freeze, provided the waiver for fuel shortages only, and didn't make allowances for later pleas from rural areas that snowed under highways often were as much a problem as gas or fuel oil.

Sen. Harry Mesel, D-33 Youngstown, said broadening of the college loan program will make from $10 million to $20 million in new loan money available next year. Last year, 21,000 Ohio students borrowed $31 million from the student loan commission, he said.

A Senate amendment provides, in addition to the 100 per cent guarantee, some added incentive for Ohio's banks and lending institutions to participate in the program.

It says that no bank, savings and loan, or other lending institution can be a depository for interim state funds unless they offer the loans. Sponsors said about 20 per cent of the lenders now holding state funds currently do not participate in the program.

Social Security ruling a landmark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has told Congress it can pass laws that treat women differently from men — sometimes.

The test, the nation's highest court said in a pair of recent rulings on Social Security laws, is what purpose Congress has in mind.

Here's how a slim majority of the court's nine members sees it:

If the differing treatment is rendered to help compensate for past discrimination suffered by working women, it's constitutional.

If it is ordered "with no more substantial justification than the archaic and overbroad generalizations or old notions" about women's role in the family and on the job, it's unconstitutional.

The distinction is more than just words. It has meant and will continue to mean billions of dollars to millions of people.

Three weeks ago, the court struck down amendments to the Social Security Act that require a widower and the husband of a retired woman to prove he was dependent on his wife in order to collect benefits accrued during her working career.

No such requirement faced widows or wives of retired men. The court voted 5 to 4 that Congress couldn't justify the difference.

"To withstand constitutional challenge ... classifications by gender must serve important governmental objectives," the court's majority said. Women's right to equal protection under the law was violated because although they paid as much Social Security taxes as men, their taxes weren't buying as much protection for their spouses, the majority said.

However, in an unsigned unanimous decision handed down Monday, the court looked at another discrepancy in how Social Security laws treat the sexes and gave its blessing.

The court upheld a part of the law in effect from 1956 to 1972 that allowed retired women to collect slightly higher benefits than men with the same earnings record.

"The legislative history is clear that the differing treatment of men and women was not the accidental byproduct of a traditional way of thinking about families, but rather was deliberately enacted to compensate for particular disabilities suffered by women," the court said.

The old provision was challenged by a retired New York man who is still receiving less money each month than if he were a woman. He said that when Congress equalized the payments in 1972, it should have made them retroactive. Lower federal courts agreed with him.

The Supreme Court disagreed. "That Congress changed its mind ... does not constitute an admission that its previous policy was invidiously discriminatory," it said.

Still confused about the distinctions? You're in good company.

The four court members who dissented in the first case — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist, Harry A. Blackmun and Potter Stewart — registered their delight to be on the winning side in the second.

They admitted, however, that they found it "somewhat difficult to distinguish" the court's conclusions in the two cases.

Katangan rebels gain

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Katangan rebels appear to be firmly entrenched and fighting hard in southern Zaire despite government claims of success against them.

It was learned Tuesday that the invading exiles from neighboring Angola apparently have regained control of Kasaji, a town 130 miles west of Kolwezi, the copper mining center in southern Shaba province, the former Katanga.

Kasaji was first reported taken by the invaders on March 14 after heavy fighting in which President Mobutu Sese Seko's forces were estimated to have suffered about 200 casualties. The government claimed on Saturday that its troops had recaptured the town, which is nearly halfway between the Angolan border and the Kolwezi mines, the likely immediate target of the invasion.

Copper from Shaba is Zaire's biggest export, and about half of the U.S. supply of cobalt, a byproduct of the copper mines, comes from the province.

The Katangans also were reported still holding the towns of Dilolo, on the border west of Kasaji and Kolwezi; Sandao and Kesenge, and Kapanga, 155 miles northeast of Dilolo and 45 miles from the border, despite government claims of "massive bombing raids" that were driving the invaders back into Angola.

Foreign observers doubted these claims, estimating that Zaire's air force at the most has only eight operational jets and that they carry only two rockets each.

The invasion force is estimated to consist of 2,000 Katangan troops who fled to Angola after losing a war for the independence of their province from the former Belgian Congo in the 1960s. Five thousand more Katangan troops are reported still in Angola.

Zaire's 25,000-man army is handicapped by fuel shortages, poor communications and long supply lines. According to one report, the government owes its troops in some areas two months pay but has managed to pay those in Shaba.

The United States, which has a $35-million military aid program for Zaire, has shipped Mobutu's government two plane loads of so-called nonlethal equipment since the invasion, including spare parts for transport planes, troop carriers, rations, uniforms and medical supplies. Belgium has sent ammunition and light weapons.

Earthworms next gourmet's delight?

SEATTLE (AP) — When you peddle earthworms as food fit for humans, there's nowhere to go but up. Sure enough, Ronald Gaddie is reporting progress in his campaign to popularize the dish.

For a second year, Gaddie's North American Bait Farms Inc. is sponsoring a nationwide worm recipe contest. Gaddie says the number of entries has soared over last year — from 200 to 500.

Last year's winner was Earthworm Applesauce Surprise Cake.

"Try 'em, you'll like them," said Gaddie in a telephone interview from Centralia, Wash., where he teaches classes to prospective earthworm raisers at Pacific Northwest Bait and Ecology. That firm sells worms to Gaddie's company, which is based in Ontario, Calif.

Worms "taste like shredded wheat," said Gaddie. "I like them best in oatmeal cookies, but I've eaten them with rice, sprinkled on top of salads rather than bacon bits, with scrambled eggs and with steak and gravy."

For those concerned about nutrition, Gaddie says earthworms are 72 per cent protein and less than one per cent fat. For those who like the terminology of haute cuisine, there is always the name "ver de Terre."

Mary Croslin, who owns Pacific Northwest Bait and Ecology, is raising 5.3 million worms in beds filled with manure.

"It's kind of shocking the first time you eat one, but now I don't even think about it," she said. When salted they taste like jerky, she said.

Gaddie said he once ate worms every day for three months.

"They didn't hurt me," he added. The only way he doesn't particularly like them is raw.

"I know some people who suck them like spaghetti, but I could never do that," he says.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, silent until now about his career and the Watergate scandal that drove him from office in 1974, starts talking today for history, television and money.

And British talk show star David Frost, whose exclusive interviews with him will air in May, calls the talks he's taping with Nixon easily the toughest and most challenging task of his entire career.

"Particularly since Richard M. Nixon is renowned to be an incredibly private person, and we want to see the real Richard Nixon, find out the answer to that enigma," Frost said.

Among those who've helped Frost prepare for the Nixon meetings are Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, the Washington Post reporters whose work broken open the Watergate story that led to Nixon's resignation.

Frost, whose company opened an office in Washington, D.C., last July to research the Nixon story, says Woodward and Bernstein "are but two of hundreds of people who've given us their help."

"We've literally talked to hundreds of people, had a fulltime staff of four working since July, and they've talked to hundreds of people who participated in the Nixon saga — for, against and in the middle."

Starting today, Frost is to interview Nixon 12 times, two hours each time, with the last interview on April 20. He says they're working at a private home near Nixon's house in San Clemente.

Neither Frost nor his production company, Paradine Productions, will say what the 64-year-old former president is being paid for the interviews. But published reports put the fee at around $600,000.

At least 118 television stations in the United States will air the interviews, to be edited down to four 90-minute programs shown in sequence on May 4, 12, 19 and 25, says Syndicast Services, the company selling the show.

And, says Marvin Minoff, Frost's business partner, the Mutual Broadcasting System has bought radio rights to the Nixon interviews and will feed them to MBS affiliates for airing the same nights as the telecasts.

Frost, 37, met with Nixon two weeks ago to iron out technical details of the interview-taping. He described him as appearing "remarkably resilient," as he first found him on Aug. 9, 1975, when Nixon signed his contract with Frost, a year to the day after resigning from office.

"It was as if he went through that enormous emotional decompression and has come to terms with the most dramatic rise and fall in American political history," Frost said.

Asked to describe Nixon's mood, he said: "Composed, I suppose, is the best word, because he's about to embark on these 12 sessions of two-hour interviews, which are a tremendous undertaking, really."

"I'm a television man and I've never done 12 two-hour sessions."

According to Minoff, the first televised show will deal with Nixon's last days in office, the second with his foreign policies, the third with his domestic policies and last with Watergate.

New idea allows MT students to visit other SCOL schools

By KATHI JENKINS
Visitation Day is a new idea proposed by the principals in the South Central Ohio League. The SCOL Student Council has organized and planned the SCOL Visitation Day.

To promote good feelings and cooperation between the league schools is the purpose of the event on March 30. It is hoped that by learning what life is like in other schools, the participating students will gain knowledge and ideas that may prove to be useful in their own schools.

The visiting students will each spend the entire day with his own host student. During study halls and lunch periods they will have the opportunity to visit other areas of the building.

The students attending Circleville from Miami Trace are Neil Spears, Vicki Bennett, Tammy Arnold and Scott Grooms.

Tami has been active in Dramatic Arts, Science Club, Bowling Club, FHA, Girl's Track and Future Teacher's. She also enjoys hiking, painting, reading, acting crazy, dating and supporting Trace's undefeated football team.

Her future plans are to be independent, work and live life to the fullest. She advises underclassmen to be themselves, don't follow the crowd just to be popular and to do what is right for themselves.

Sara Benson is our next senior and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Benson. She resides at 1530 Ohio 41-S.

Her college prep courses include Advanced Math, Typing II, Physiology, British Literature, Symphonic Band, Sociology, Psychology, Government and Composition.

She likes to raise and take care of her pets and enjoys track and softball among other sports.

Sara has been accepted to Ohio State

University where she will major in computer science in the fall.

Being a band member the two years Miami Trace's football team brought home the gold football was the highlight of her years at Trace.

"Get on down and do as much as you can now, because it gets away from you just too fast." This is Tony Walters' comment to underclassmen. He is the son of Mrs. John Marcum and Mr. Sonny Walters and lives at 4511 Miami Trace Road near Greenfield.

His courses are Government, Journalism, Speech, Family Living, and Chemistry.

Tony has been in 4-H for eight years, on the football and track teams, is president of the Varsity M Club, treasurer of the senior class and a member of student council.

He has fun motorcycling, playing football and basketball, swimming, meeting new people and just having a good time.

In the future Tony plans to go to college and major in business management. As for the highlight of his years, he thought being on three championship football teams, especially this year's team, was his best times at Trace.

Favorite hobbies of Beth Jenks are horse-back riding, swimming, fishing, water skiing and camping. She is the daughter of Mr. Ernest Jenks of Route 1, Jeffersonville.

She is taking Chemistry, Vo-Ag, Algebra II, Government, Composition and Typing in preparation for going to Ohio State University in the fall. Beth wants to major in some field of agriculture there.

She has been in 4-H by participating in Junior Fairboard, Junior Leadership, and the Ambitious Farmers 4-H Club. Futue Farmers has also been a big part of her years at Trace along with the Science Club and Dramatic Arts Club. She attends the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church and in the youth fellowship.

Beth found being in FFA and meeting new people highlighted her years at Miami Trace.

Chorus members important in 'Brigadoon' production

By CHERYL BLUE
Some people might think the chorus is an unimportant part of a musical. Not so, in the musical "Brigadoon." This year's chorus is practicing eight songs in four, five, and even six part harmony. The chorus is fairly small so everyone must know their part down to the last "la".

Not only does the chorus practice singing, but they also practice pantomiming. It is very important that everyone reacts to each other by the use of facial expressions. If this is not done, then the chorus would turn into a group of statues.

There are many small solo parts in the musical this year. The following member of the chorus have special solos: Brad Maust, Mark Smithson, Alan Johnson, Kathi Jenkins, Tammy Payton, Kathy Jacobs, Lynne Acton, Mark Hurtt, and Cheryl Blue.

A select group of girls were chosen from the main chorus to be in the special girl's chorus. The special girl's chorus includes: Tammy Payton, Lynne Acton, Alisa Hughes, Kathi Jenkins, Marilyn Creamer, Lisa Melvin, Brenda Joseph and Cheryl Blue.

To see the important part of the chorus plays in this year's Miami Trace musical come see "Brigadoon" on April 15 or 16.

For a half a day he takes DE I, DE II, Government, and Business Law. In the afternoon, he works at Ev's Find Foods in the frozen foods and dairy departments.

John finds driving, working on cars, going to movies and parties as his favorite pastimes.

To underclassmen his advice is, "Get the most you can out of everyday, because you only get one chance."

Wendell grabs coaching honor

Faine tops All-Ohio, Class A

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Joe Faine, twice all-state and Ohio's Class A Player of the Year, is one of those do-everything performers in small school boys high school basketball.

"He plays anywhere he wants on the floor," said one sports writer who has followed Faine's career.

The 6-foot-4 senior from Rawson Cory-Rawson has averaged more than 30 points in gaining a first team All-Ohio berth two straight seasons. He also averages double figures in rebounding and sank 51 per cent of his floor shots this winter.

Sharing the top Class A honors with

Faine was State Class A Coach of the Year Dan Wendell, who guided Morral Ridgedale to top ranking in The Associated Press state poll. Ridgedale won 16 of 17 regular season games.

One of Wendell's aces, 6-1 junior Brad Weston, joined Faine on the eight-player first unit, selected on the recommendations of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Weston averaged 21.4 points.

Weston is the third brother to make first team all-state at Ridgedale. The previous ones were Dan, who went on to Ohio State, and Randy, a 1976 allstar now performing for Ashland College.

Another junior who made the first team this time was 6-3 Baxter Jones of Windham.

The trio was joined by 6-5 Jim Hoops of Hamler Henry, 5-11 Steve Cikach of Cuyahoga Heights, 6-1 Kevin O'Dell of Arcanum and 6-3 Ed Andes of Shadyside, all seniors.

On the second team were 6-3 Dennis Nau of Caldwell, 6-3 Jay Meyer of Covington, 6-4 Mike Rengert of Cardington, 6-6 Dave Smith of Old Fort, 6-3 Joe Butcher of Stewart Federal-Hocking, 6-4 Clay Dill of LaGrange Keystone, 6-2 Jeff Rupp of Creston Norwayne and 6-4 Chip Brauer of Racine Southern.

Dill and Rupp are juniors on the otherwise all-senior No. 2 unit.

Third team selections were 6-2 Jeff Jahn of Sparta Highland, 6-2 Steve Rossi of Middletown Fenwick, 6-3 Steve Burton of Yellow Springs, 6-1 Jeff Chandler of Freeport Lakeland, 6-foot Jack Numbers of Strasburg, 6-3 Jack Braidic of Sebring, 5-11 Allan Young of Fairport Harbor Harding and 6-2 Jon Williams of Oak Hill. ## Where do you stand?

Sides lining up in Rose dispute

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Whether it ends in happy conciliation or painful divorce, Pete Rose's salary stand-off with the Cincinnati Reds is unique in the club's storied history.

Allies and enemies are lining up to take sides for or against Rose, baseball's best known love-hate figure since Ty Cobb.

A fan in Cincinnati took out an ad in the Cincinnati Enquirer, urging Rose's backers to flood the Reds' front office with a show of support.

A Kettering, Ohio man mailed Rose a blank ticket application, explaining that he was passing up seats at Riverfront Stadium in 1977 because he was opposed to "a bunch of millionaire ballplayers."

A nationally-known sports columnist from Boston, where they booed Rose in 1975, said the tough-minded hitting star is worth whatever he's asking.

An elderly lady living in a nursing home in Covington, Ky. sent Rose a religious pamphlet lecturing on the evils of greed.

Bundles of mail addressed to Rose pour into the Reds' spring training camp daily. Some are angry, some are in agreement, and many others simply request an autograph.

"My father said you are going to be traded to Philadelphia, will you autograph this before you go?" wrote a preteen from Texas.

Dave Glick, of Kettering, Ohio, saved the subtleties.

"$400,000. Boy, that's a lot of money. $2000 per hit, if you reach your annual goal. About $82 for every swing of the bat. Put Dave Revering on third and promise him one tenth of that salary. I can identify with the struggle, the success and the commensurate regard," said Glick.

Ray Fitzgerald, of the Boston Globe, wrote: "I have gone on record as saying that ball clubs should draw the line and tell the players to 'play for what we offer you or go run an elevator somewhere.' Having said that, I would now like to say what whatever Pete Rose is asking, management ought to give to him."

Bulls whip LA Lakers

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Bulls continue their amazing surge, and part of the reason for their recent success is their early season failure.

"We're not playing any differently now, except that we're a little more mature and the shots are starting to fall in," said Chicago Coach Ed Badger, whose Bulls beat the Los Angeles Lakers 102-86 Tuesday night for their sixth victory in a row and 17th in the last 18 National Basketball Association games.

"We have so much confidence now, it's hard to believe we lost so many games," said captain Norm Van Lier of the Bulls, who got off to a 2-14 start this season. "I think the difference is that we know what we want to do and if we goof up a play, we don't suddenly fall apart."

The Bulls did not goof up many plays against the Lakers, sending the crowd of 21,046 — the biggest pro basketball attendance in Chicago history — home happy.

Chicago pulled away in the third period when Wilbur Holland, Mickey Johnson and Scott May combined for 21 points, putting the Bulls ahead 76-63.

Coaches pick tourney winners

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The men who should know—the competing coaches—predict Barberton, Cleveland Latin and Mansfield St. Peter's will win the Ohio high school boys basketball tournament titles Saturday.

In their annual survey by The Associated Press, the coaches of the 12 semifinalists went out on a limb.

And they overhulming went for Barberton to keep its Class AAA championship, Cleveland Latin to nip Columbus Mifflin for the Class AA crown and St. Peter's to win its second straight Class A title.

Nine of the 12 coaches voted for top-ranked Barberton, two selected second-rated Columbus Linden-McKinley and one picked Cincinnati LaSalle, an unranked longshot.

In Class AA, Latin picked up five votes to four for Mifflin. Ottawa-Glandorf was named on two ballots and Dayton Jefferson on one.

St. Peter's, the 1968 small school champion, earned seven of the 12 votes in Class A. Fort Loramie was mentioned three times and Continental and Richmond Dale Southeastern once apiece.

When told of the vote, coach Jack Greynolds of Barberton wondered if the poll victor won the actual championship. "Does it usually work out that way? You tell them I'll go with a winner."

Greynolds sees no extra pressure on the Magics because of the voting. "Not

Tigers' Bailey resigns under league pressure

Two-year Circleville High School basketball coach Jim Bailey has announced his resignation under SCOL pressure. However, he did not resign from his teaching duties at Circleville.

Bailey, in a prepared statement, gave the following reason for stepping down: "The resignation is motivated by reaction to my decision to start an all-senior line-up in the Wilmington game. I made the decision to rest my starters because (1) I knew that we would have to be at full strength to have any chance to beat Mifflin in the district tournament and (2) I believed, in light of the physical condition of our squad, that a total commitment of our regular starters could have very likely left us at less than full strength."

Wilmington defeated Circleville on Mar. 5 and then went on to down Washington C.H. for a perfect SCOL season. Charges came from around the league that Bailey did not have the best interests of the league at heart when he made his decision to start second-teams against the Hurricane.

Later, Columbus Mifflin defeated Circleville in the district opener. The Puncners are now at Ohio State, priming for a state semi-final game.

Bailey led the Tigers to the Class AA regional finals last season when they were defeated by the eventual state champs, Dayton Roth. His mark with the Tigers was 35-10 in just two seasons.

He was in the hot seat from the beginning, following John Lawhorn as Circleville coach. Lawhorn was regarded as one of the finest coaches in the area and guided Circleville to an 18-0 season in his final year. Lawhorn now coaches at powerful Warren Western Reserve High School, a Class AAA school.

Circleville superintendent Fritz Jacobs indicated that he will recommend that the board accept Bailey's resignation at its April meeting.

Jackson not accustomed to the faces

Yankee arrival ready to leave?

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Sub-torrid topics from the sub-tropics:

Whispers persist that discord runs deep in the camp of the gold-cruised New York Yankees, and one source insists that Reggie Jackson, the $2.9 million hired hand, is so fed up he would like to be traded. A probe reveals a slight exaggeration.

Some feathers were ruffled at the Team Superstars television extravaganza in Hawaii earlier this month. Jackson wears two hats — he's a Yankee and a commentator for ABC, which staged the show.

Reggie got miffed with some of his new teammates. As the Cincinnati Reds clobbered the Yanks in rowing, cycling and tug o' war, just as they had in the World Series. Reggie felt his mates were "dogging it."

Some sharp words were exchanged.

MT sponsors game with WCH lettermen

Basketball on the high school level is not dead, yet. Miami Trace and Washington C.H. will play each other once again.

This time, however, John Denen and Art Schlichter won't suit up because the Miami Trace Varsity M Club will play the Washington C.H. Letterman's Club.

The game will take place at MTHS on Thursday, Mar. 24. The admission price will be $1 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Thurman Munson and Graig Nettles became involved. Some Yankees gave Reggie the brushoff in his microphone duties. It was a bit messy.

But George Steinbrenner II, the Yankee owner, refuses to let sores fester. Ten days ago he called the principals together for a luncheon faceoff. "Everything's been ironed out — all's fine now," Steinbrenner said. "The Yankees' prime purpose is to play baseball. They were told specifically not to take chances, not to get hurt in that TV show."

Everybody's talking about the sharp contrast in the personalities of professionalist Walt Alston, who managed the Los Angeles Dodgers for close to a quarter of a century, and his successor, Tom Lasorda. Alston didn't say 100 words during an entire season. The ebullient Lasorda spills that many while putting on his socks.

Lasorda must have Don Rickles or Henny Youngman doing his lines.

"People are always saying my wife and I don't go dancing any more," Lsorda says. "That's a lie. We go dancing six days a week. I go dancing every Monday, Wednesday and Friday and she goes dancing every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday."

Old Satchel Paige's description of how baseball has changed: "Today's ball players reach for the Wall Street Journal instead of The Sporting News."

March 5, the day Jimmy Connors met Ilie Nastase in the so-called "World Championship of Tennis" was also the day of the Romanian earthquake. Promoters went to great pains to shield

Ilie from the news of the tragedy before the match.

At breakfast, however, Connors yelled across the room. "Hey, Ilie, your house has been knocked down."

"What you mean?" the puzzled Romanian asked.

"Didn't you know?" Connors persisted. "Earthquake in Bucharest. Here's half a buck. Call over there for yourself."

A shaken Nastase learned the news and lost the match.

And tennis is supposed to be the gentlemanly game.

Johnny Majors, coach of the National Champion University of Pittsburgh football team who returned to his Tennessee alma mater, says Tennessee alumni have assured him: "Johnny, we're behind you 100 per cent — win or tie."

Reds cut 10 players

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have cut 10 players from their spring training roster.

Page sets Grapefruit League on fire

By BOB GREENE

AP Sports Writer

Mitchell Page is a realist. He knows that the gaudy .610 batting average he now has will not last a whole season.

But the Oakland A's rookie outfielder-first baseman feels he can hit at least half that during the 1977 baseball season.

"If I play, I know I can hit," Page said after driving in one run with a triple and scoring the winning run as Oakland edged the San Diego Padres 3-2 in an exhibition game Tuesday.

Acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a trade last week, Page has 11 hits in 18 at-bats this spring. Five of his hits have been for extra bases.

In the fifth inning, with the score tied 2-2, Page walked, moved to third on Jerry Tabb's single and scored on a groundout.

In other exhibition games Tuesday, the Montreal Expos defeated the Minnesota Twins 12-8, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0, the Detroit Tigers stopped the Boston Red Sox 6-2, the Milwaukee Brewers crushed the Cleveland Indians 15-4, the Baltimore Orioles trounced the Chicago White Sox 12-4, the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Cincinnati Reds 10-2, the Seattle Mariners downed the California Angels 10-5, the Houston Astros nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5, the New York Mets downed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4, the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Yankees 7-5, the San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 7-5 and the Texas Rangers topped the Kansas City Royals 8-5.

Veteran Steve Carlton and rookie Randy Lerch combined for a three-hitter as Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh. Carlton gave up two hits in five innings, while Lerch struck out six in four innings.

A one-out double by Sandy Alomar in the ninth inning snapped a 5-5 tie and led Texas to its victory over Kansas City. Biff Pocoroba slammed a pinch-hit double in the seventh and scored the winning run on Barry Bonell's single as Atlanta won its fourth straight game. John Montefusco hurled four hitless innings and scored San Francisco's first run after walking to lead off the Giants' three-run third. A triple by John Milner in the fifth drove in Lee Mazzilli with a tie-breaking run and leading the Mets to their first victory in three games against the American League expansion Blue Jays.

Jose Cruz drove in four runs with a homer and a triple, leading Houston over Los Angeles. Rookie Juan Bernhardt homered and tripled twice as Seattle pounded 15 hits in snapping a four-game losing streak. A three-run homer by Roger Freed and John Denny's one-hit pinch hitting over the first five innings led St. Louis to its victory over the defending world champion Reds.

Lee May pounded out a pair of homers, driving in five runs and pacing Baltimore's victory over the White Sox. Sixto Lezcano's grand slam homer led an 18-hit Milwaukee attack that buried Cleveland. Tom Veryzer followed Aurelio Rodriguez' three-run homer with a solo homer as Detroit exploded for six runs in the fourth inning. Gary Carter and Pete Mackanin smacked home runs in Montreal's 19-hit attack against Minnesota.

Hanging on Time to play, or to quit

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) — Say it ain't so, Joe.

Hang 'em up, Ali.

C'm on, Arthur, grab that brief case instead of a racket.

Three of America's most imposing sports figures of the last decade — Jets' quarterback Joe Namath, heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and tennis star Arthur Ashe — have reached the fork in their remarkable careers and must make a decision: carry on or leave the stage in dignity. All apparently have chosen the ego trip. More's the pity.

Namath, 33, with knees held together by safety pins and adhesive tape, is flirting with a last hurrah as a member of the Los Angeles Rams. If he goes West — and every indication is he will — then he will go with helmet in hand, at a reduced salary and in the role of a football "designated pitcher."

The 35-year-old Ali, his old fighting skills tarnished, his speed slowed but his mind and mouth keen as ever, has committed himself to take on some obscure Italian punching bag named Lorenzo "Rocky" Zanon in Korea next month.

It's another humpty-dumpty outing for "The Greatest."

Ashe, 33, the black policeman's son who fought the battles of racial injustice while winning highest honors on the court, has undergone an operation for a heel injury that hobbled him for years and has ended his long bachelorhood.

Now he plans to resume big time tournament tennis. It is a laudable gesture but, in our mind, a foolish one. He should make periodic appearances in the big ones — Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and even the Davis Cup — and turn his talents in another direction, perhaps as an aide to United Nations ambassador Andrew Young, his good friend.

There is something tragic about a great sports hero striving to keep alive fading glories. It is depressing to see a once mighty champion reduced to a battered, humiliated victim because he failed to heed the red signal which said, "Stop."

This was particularly true in the case of Joe Louis, the revered Brown Bomber, one of the greatest fighting machines who ever lived. He was beaten by Ezzard Charles after emerging from retirement in 1950 and then crushed in eight brutal rounds by a young Rocky Marciano in 1951.

"I didn't want to fight," Louis was to say later. "I needed the money."

Marciano went on to win the title in September, 1952, run up a record of 49 victories without defeat and retire, virtually unmarked, in April, 1956, at age 32. He died in a plane accident three years later.

Marciano, nevertheless, as did Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and others, left his admirers an unforgettable legacy.

Pete's wife makes best of being baseball widow

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Carolyn Rose excused herself from her poolside chair to place a long distance grocery order back to Cincinnati.

"Go to Skyline Chili and pick up eight frozen chilis," she said into the motel room phone.

"Get some goetta, too, Mom," requested her 12-year-old daughter, Fawn, putting in her bid for the sausage-like foodstuff popular in the Rhineland of the Midwest.

Chili, the diet of champions?

If you were expecting freshflown lobster and sword fish steaks, forget it. Carolyn Rose is Carolyn Rose and she refuses to put on stuffy airs.

"People like me because I'm me, not because I'm Pete Rose's wife," said the out-going mother of two.

"And that's the way I try to bring up my kids, too. Fawn is into athletics. In fact, if she had her way, she would become a professional athlete. But I don't want her to make it in life on her father's name," said the attractive brunette.

"Pete is seven and baseball is the biggest thing in his life, but we've had people tell us he never says a word about who his dad is to the other kids. I'm proud of that."

Baseball widows learn early to take the good with the bad.

"Last fall, when President Ford came to town, he shook hands with Pete, turned to me and said, 'Your husband is a real good home run hitter.' I smiled and thanked him, even though he thought I was Tony Perez' wife," she said.

Baseball widows also learn to live in the background, but it's not always easy. Although she has had 14 fun-filled years around baseball, the spring of 1977 has been a painful one.

"This year's been the hardest. I lost my best friend," she said, referring to Pituka Perez, wife of former Reds first baseman Tony Perez, who was traded to the Montreal Expos in the off-season.

"People don't understand that losing long-time friends is like losing your family," said Carolyn, who has long assumed the role of den mother for Reds wives. While she feels some regret over getting too close to people, she feels it's too late to change her ways.

"I guess I've always been the mother type. I just can't see somebody new coming into town and not having a family doctor or someone to talk to. I've always told the girls they should have at least one best friend around to talk to when their husbands are gone," she said.

The baseball wife has to be mother and father to her children and "the only vacation you get together with your husband is spring training," she said.

"But there are benefits, too. 'I've always said baseball couples never fight in the summer. You're too happy to have him home with the kids,'" she said.

Racers rip Stingers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For goalie Paul Hoganson, the Indianapolis Racers' 3-1 World Hockey Association victory over the Cincinnati Stingers was super sweet.

"I knew I was going to play this game for a week and was looking forward to it," Hoganson said Tuesday night. "I got tired of waiting for it."

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A sheet flooring with a special moisture barrier.

Manufacturer's claim — That the barrier coat is sandwiched between the asbestos backing and the foam layer of the flooring... that it prevents discoloration due to alkali and moisture-borne fungus... that the field testing included installations in homes in Florida and California... that it comes in 6-foot and 12-foot widths and is suited to do-it-yourself installation... and that it meets federal requirements for residential and light commercial use.

THE PRODUCT — A garage door opener that operates from a car's cigarette lighter slot.

Manufacturer's claim — That the transmitter looks like a cigarette lighter and is pushed in to activate it... that an individually coded radio message opens the garage door... that it works with any door opener on the market or already installed on the garage... that the transmitting unit weighs only one ounce and has no batteries that can go dead or deteriorate in summer heat... and that the receiver can be easily connected to your present equipment.

THE PRODUCT — A series of decorator wall panels with a sculptured, cameo-like surface.

Manufacturer's claim — That the panels are made from Brazilian hardboard in the standard 4' by 8' size... that they have a duo-coated melamine finish that wipes clean with a damp cloth... that the 1/8-inch panels can be installed over any solid backing with ordinary carpenter tools... and that they can be used on accent walls, as wainscoting, alternated with mirrors, framed for effect in the kitchen or bathroom, or as a conversation piece in any room.

THE PRODUCT — An oil burner unit that is small enough to fit into an ordinary closet.

Manufacturer's claim — That the distinctive blue flame with which the unit operates enables the furnace to work quietly, efficiently and cleanly, producing no smoke... that no masonry chimney is required, making it possible to replace any type of heating unit, even one using a simple flue... that it is readily adaptable to air conditioning usage... and that 1,000 units were tested in the field before national marketing was begun.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

(The sheet flooring is manufactured by Mannington Mills, Inc., Salem, N. J. 08079; the garage door opener by Mallard Manufacturing Corp., 101 Mallard Rd., Sterling, Ill. 61081; the wall panels by Marlite division, Masonite Corp., Diver, Ohio 44822; and the heating unit by Blue-ray Systems, Inc., 375 North Broadway, Jericho, N. Y. 11753.)

Carter ready to announce 32 deleted water projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is ready to announce a new "semi-final" list of as many as 32 water projects in danger of cancellation, according to members of Congress who received advance word of the decision. The list, expected to be released today by the White House, includes many carryovers from an earlier, controversial list of 19 projects that Carter deleted from his fiscal 1978 budget recommendations last month. But some water projects, including the large Tennessee-Tombigbee

Waterway in Alabama and Mississippi, are new — although a number of them appeared on unofficial lists that have been circulating on Capitol Hill in the past few weeks.

Checks with congressional offices late Tuesday disclosed that the following new Corps of Engineer flood control, dam and lake projects are on the list, in addition to Tennessee-Tombigbee:

- Tyrone water project, Pa.
- Hillsdale dam, Kan.
- LaFarge Lake and channel improvements, Wis.
- Fulton, Ill., flood control.
- Gallipolis lock and dam, Ohio.
- Red River waterway, Texas Basin, Bayou Bodcau, and a Mississippi Gulf outlet study, all in Louisiana.
- Red River waterway, Texas portions.

Three Bureau of Reclamation projects are also reportedly on the list: the Narrows and Dallas Creek projects in Colorado and the Lyman project in Wyoming.

The bulk of the original 19 jeopardized projects were also reported to be on the new list, including the Central Arizona water project; the Auburn-Folsom south unit, Calif.; and Bonnevile project of Central Utah.

In its original list, the administration contended the costs outweighed the projects' benefits. It said scrapping the 19 projects would save almost $289 million in the next fiscal year and up to $5.1 billion in the long run.

The new list is a refinement and narrowing of lists that have been circulating on Capitol Hill in past weeks showing that more than 60 corps and bureau projects had failed initial screening by the administration.

Many members of Congress from both parties strongly protested the deletion of the original 19 projects from Carter's proposed budget.

To soften the blow this time, White House officials late last week began notifying individual members of projects that had passed initial screening — nearly 300 water projects in all.

Swift action predicted to change election law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic majority in Congress is gearing for swift and favorable action on President Carter's election law package, but some Republicans are ready to fight Carter's plan for public financing of congressional campaigns. Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., coined the phrase "kept congressmen" in voicing his opposition to public financing of campaigns and that phrase was echoed Tuesday by other GOP members of Congress.

The public financing provision, one of four major elements of the Carter package, drew the most criticism from the GOP.

But the votes on all elements of the package are likely to reflect the partisan assessments of the elected members of Congress.

Sen. John Tower of Texas, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, complained bitterly about Carter's voter registration proposal to allow persons to vote in federal elections simply by showing up on election day with proof of identity and residence.

Tower charged the proposal "opens the door to abuse." He cited "possibilities of voting tombstones, livestock and aliens."

Surveys show that Republicans, although outnumbered, are more likely to register and turn out to vote than Democrats. Some Republicans fear that most of the new voters the President wants to get to the polls will be Democrats.

Tower also had harsh words for public financing, which he said "perpetrates a hoax on the American people."

Tower contends that public financing gives people the impression that pressure groups would be kept out of political campaigns because they couldn't contribute money.

But Tower said the kind of manpower assistance that organized labor gives Democratic candidates is more valuable than money.

Although Carter's package did not suggest dollar amounts, a bill introduced in the House last week would provide taxpayer funding of up to

Clean-up campaign launched

Junk vehicles, rubbish targets of city effort

Record-Herald City Editor

Trash, junk autos, and garbage are the targets of a citywide clean-up effort being planned by Washington C.H. city officials.

Starting Monday, a knock on a Washington C.H. resident's door could be someone informing the occupant that he is in violation of a city "neatness" ordinance. The resident will then be given a 10-day verbal notice to clean up his property.

If the property is not cleaned up in the 10-day period, a 10-day written notice will be issued by Washington C.H. City Manager George H. Shapter. If the offender fails to comply with the written notice, the city warns it will prosecute.

City Inspector Glenn L. Tatman has a stack of 200 written reports listing city property owners who are in violation of the ordinance. He said the list was compiled during the past year, but due to the lack of help, no action has been taken.

With the arrival of spring and a newly hired field inspector trainee, Tatman felt now was the time to begin a clean-up campaign.

Tatman and Vernon Stanforth, the field inspector trainee, have been inspecting residential areas in the city to see, if his stack of violation reports are true. Monday, the door-knocking campaign will begin.

"We've got an ordinance against it (junk-littered property)," Tatman said. "They (violators) should clean it up without having to be told."

Tatman said a similar spring clean-up campaign was instituted two years ago by the city. It was reportedly a success. Last year, Tatman said he was busy with building inspections and issuing building permits, and no clean-up campaign was held.

Thanks to the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) program, the city was able to employ the 20-year-old Stanforth earlier this month to help Tatman out.

A 1975 graduate of Miami Trace High School, Stanforth will be doing his share of door-to-door canvassing next week. Stanforth, who resides in Jeffersonville, was a student at Morehead (Ky.) State University before accepting the position with the city. Last summer, he worked as a youth counselor for the local Community Action Commission's summer program.

THE ORDINANCE, that at least 200 city residents are in violation of, reads:

"No person shall store, place or allow to remain, used building materials, motor vehicles in an inoperative condition, automobile parts, scrap metal, refuse or rubbish on any lot zoned residential within the corporate limits of the city."

Tatman said the unusually cold winter has caused some of the trash build up on residential property. He pointed out that there were several days when refuse removal trucks could not operate and roads were closed to area landfills. However, he added, "Now is the time to clean it up."

He said there are probably 100 junked cars alone, parked on Washington C.H. streets or residential lots, that should be removed.

According to the city code a "motor vehicle in an inoperative condition" means any style or type of motor driven vehicle which is unable to move under its own power due to defective or missing parts.

Used building material is defined as wood, stone, brick, or cement block used or useful in the building of any structure. So, residents with bricks or boards located in their yards are in violation of the code.

Scrap metal is defined as any piece of

Juvenile justice reform faces fight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill promising sweeping reforms in Ohio's juvenile justice system appears headed for a protracted struggle in the legislature, supporters concede.

"We have been deluged in my office with lots of criticism—and some praise," said Atty. Gen. William J. Brown who drafted the bill, based on recommendations of his Task Force on Juvenile Justice.

"The problem we have is that we don't have a vehicle for treatment of 95 per cent of the juveniles that happen to get in trouble in the state," Brown said Tuesday.

The bill is an attempt to shift emphasis from state facilities to local and regional programs, where "non-dangerous" youths—runaways, truants and "unruly children"—can get less restrictive treatment.

It would also provide a "bill of rights" for juveniles, guaranteeing due process with the right to be represented by an attorney, but not necessarily the right to a jury trial.

The Omnibus Juvenile Justice Reform Act cuts across the entire spectrum, according to Brown, affecting the 25-year-old juvenile code, the 75-year-old court system and the 125-year-old reform school system.

It would phase out over a two-year period the 120-year-old Fairfield School for Boys, near Lancaster, and funnel that institution's budget funds to community programs.

It would place a 200-inmate ceiling on state facilities; increase the role of county prosecutors in dealing with serious offenders; treat neglected, abused and dependent children as victims, rather than offenders; and send youthful traffic offenders to traffic court instead of juvenile court.

The bill would give courts more authority to deal with parents of accused juveniles by ordering family counseling and other remedies aimed at the entire family unit.

The prime sponsor, Judiciary Chairman Harry J. Lehman, also cosponsored a separate bill Tuesday that would permit those victimized by a juvenile theft to file a civil action against parents of the offender. Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, joined Lehman in offering the legislation.

Carter shifted stand on voting

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was skeptical.

He saw the flaws in the electoral vote system of choosing presidents. But he was concerned that without it, in a direct, popular election, candidates of the future might ignore the needs and voices of the small states, and play only to the big ones.

His solution, a scant month ago, was a relatively modest reform. He proposed to award the electoral votes of each state automatically to the candidate who carried it.

Water rationing tightened in Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Surrounded by drought-stricken counties already rationing water, San Franciscans now will have to cut their use to face what the mayor calls "the most desperate matter facing this city since World War II."

Car washings and full swimming pools are banned in the regulations passed Tuesday by the Public Utilities Commission. The rationing "will be very demanding" for this city's 665,000 residents, Mayor George Moscone said at a commission hearing.

The water conservation policy, which goes into effect April 1, is designed to cut overall consumption by 25 per cent.

Election law

$150,000 for congressional election races.

The other two elements of the Carter package were a constitutional amendment to eliminate the Electoral College and allow direct election of presidents, and a plan to amend the Hatch Act to permit greater participation in partisan politics by federal employes.

Many lawmakers believe the end is near for the Electoral College. Debate on the Hatch Act revision is likely to follow the same party line with a few Democrat defections that occurred when similar proposals were before Congress last year. Strong opposition by then-President Gerald R. Ford blocked their enactment.

Minor fire checked

No loss was reported in a minor fire Tuesday at a construction site on Leslie Trace Court, off Ohio 41-N.

Washington C.H. firemen reported paper was set on fire by children playing with matches near a home under construction at 5:10 p.m. The home is owned by Mark and Mustine, Inc., and the blaze had been extinguished by the time firemen arrived.

Stock prices up fraction

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices, down for four straight sessions, revived a little today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going, and advances took a lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that some of the glamor issues, including IBM, started to recover late in Tuesday's session, an indication the market might rally today.

Early prices today included: Sony Corp., the NYSE's most active issue Tuesday, up 1/4 to 10 3/4. The company reported higher quarterly earnings.

Mattel Inc. was next, down 1/4 to 5 1/2 and Westinghouse Electric was third, unchanged at 17 1/4.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average gave up 2.58 to 950.96.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 3-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 18.66 million shares, against 18.04 million on Monday.

The NYSE's composite index lost .16 to 54.93.

Job plan gains momentum

Since the private sector has performed sluggishly in getting the jobless back to work, the government has a responsibility to act. It is doing so. The administration, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said the other day, plans to more than double the number of public service jobs for the unemployed and disadvantaged in the current fiscal year - from the 285,000 now available to 600,000.

Happily, it is recognized that make-work jobs of borderline value to the nation are not an acceptable answer. Plans call for putting job recipients to work at useful tasks that will serve the general public welfare.

Marshall made an important point in this connection. Noting that "our forests are in bad shape because there are not enough people to keep them up," he said: "When you consider that there are eight million people unemployed in this country, that doesn't make sense." So some of these people will work in the national forests. Others will be employed on projects to insulate homes of the poor, benefitting both the poor and the national energy-saving effort; still others will work at improving railroad beds that are in poor condition.

Vietnam-era armed service veterans and teen-agers will be first in line for such public service jobs. Marshall also looks to improving "the linkages between the public and private sectors," with employment and training geared to move workers into private jobs as they open up. The program now gaining momentum is no panacea. It does promise to significantly reduce the immediate problem and at the same time smooth the transition to higher general employment levels.

A WORD EDGEWISE...By John P. Roche

Getting the White House staff home

From the number of television sets President Carter had hauled out of the White House, it sounded as though the Republicans turned the place into a motel. Who watched? When? Why? L.B.J. was famous for the three-set console on which he really could take in three network news programs simultaneously. But the only time I can recall watching the tube was during a presidential speech or, agony of agonies, news conference. However, if Mr. Carter really wants to improve efficiency and get his staff home to their families, his next step should be to eliminate about half the phones.

At the risk of blowing the gig, perhaps I should take the opportunity to explain to government "widows and orphans" that a substantial hunk of the time not spent at home by high government officials is dedicated to seeming important. In the White House this often takes the form of spending ungodly hours at your desk engaged in telephonics. In the various departments upwardly mobile bureaucrats engage in the same practice and desperately hope that the President will call at, say, 9:30 p.m. and find them AT WORK.

If you assume, as I do, that normally the President of the United States is not a nut, hanging around the shop will hardly impress him. In emergency situations a number of staff people are on call and put in 36 hour days - I averaged about four hours of sleep a night during the Middle Eastern crisis of 1967. But the President, who works at home, should understand that his aides can do the same thing. Moreover, he can call you at home on a secure line if he wants your counsel, or your hide.

In short, widows and orphans, the fault may lie not in the Man, but in yours. Leaving aside the conscienceless rogues who do not enjoy their wives and children, I suspect most could be home for dinner most evenings. And, crises aside, there is no excuse for missing a birthday party. In Feb., 1967, for example, "Simon Legree" Johnson scheduled a little staff get-together at 8:30 on the evening we were celebrating our daughter's birthday. I called him, explained the situation, and asked to be excused - he gave me a present for her.

Others, mostly junior aides, were stunned that I didn't hang around to have a drink with the Leader of the Free World. They were equally startled when I kept avoiding Cabinet meetings. Didn't sitting in a chair along that wall give me a sense of Power? Of course not - nothing important ever happened at a Cabinet session; they were dull, and they reminded me of faculty meetings.

The President did note my devious absences and asked me about them. An honest question deserved an honest answer; I politely conveyed my views. He nodded quietly, pulled his ear, agree with me - and then gave the job of living them up! From then on, Walt Rostow, Harry McPherson, Doug Cater and I would gather (in what I called the "Acrobats for the Cabinet" caucus) before each meeting to try to brighten the agenda. The hell of this was I then had to attend, and we didn't improve them much.

Organizing meetings provides another great ego ladder and a spectacular way to kill time. The scenario here is that a staff member learns the President is concerned, say, about the problems of nutrition in the Third World. Instantly he is on the phone to State, A.I.D., U.S.I.S., Agriculture, the Weather Bureau, the National Institute of Health, et al, calling a meeting in his office on the topic. Everybody sits around, pontificates and a "Memo for the President" is born.

The participants leave a bit mystified - for six months they have been on an inter-agency committee drafting an elaborate report on the topic. How did this guy get in the act? Maybe he's important? Maybe he'll give us a direct line! Anyway, we'd better spread the word to plug him in - it won't do us any harm to have a friend in the WH. Let's invite him to our next meeting.

What with telephonics, meetings, and sundry caballing, one can easily kill 12 hours a day in the White House. I rarely worked less than 12 hours, but seldom more than eight in my office. Every night I would try to be home by 7, have a relaxed family dinner, then read the stuff I brought with me until 11 or 12. If the President wanted me, he knew which button to push, and frankly I never knew or cared whether people thought me "important." I just knew I earned my salary, the man I worked for took my opinions seriously, and I saw my family.

YOU BORN TODAY, unlike many other Arians, have been gifted with the traits needed to make a great success in the financial world. Yet here we find a paradox since, while you have a great yearning for the material things in life - and the ability to acquire them - you often lose out through sheer impulsiveness and impracticality. Your eyes may be wide open to gainful opportunity, but you often rush into new ventures without careful preparation and you allow overenthusiasm to dim your foresight. Once having learned self-control in this respect, however, you should be very successful. Aside from finance, other fields in which you could excel include the law, statesmanship, music, the theater and literature.

Retired admiral now super-plumber

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Worth Bagley used to command fleets of U.S. Navy warships and thousands of sailors at the Pentagon as vice chief of naval operations.

Now the man who was the Navy's youngest full admiral has a smaller command and a different defense responsibility — leaky plumbing, for instance, instead of enemy ships.

Bagley, 52, commands house painters, electricians and plumbers now instead of men and ships. He says he likes it better than his last job — vice chief of naval operations.

The home-service company he started last April 1 with an investment of $7,000 is already grossing at a rate of about $125,000 a year. It has put to work 21 retired or soon-to-retire chief petty officers, one ex-captain and the Navy's former top enlisted man.

"It's an idea that was in my mind several years before I retired," Bagley said Friday of his Servall Co.

In 1973, at the age of 48, Bagley was made a full admiral. He was commander of U.S. naval forces in Europe and the Mediterranean. That year, he led a Navy task force which faced down a reinforced Soviet fleet of more than 100 ships during the Arab-Israeli war. Then he spent six months at the Pentagon as vice chief of naval operations.

In 1975, he became eligible for retirement and moved here with his wife, mother and three teen-age children.

Bagley called Bob McCabe, who was his chief of staff when Bagley was commander of Cruiser-Destroyer Flotilla 7 in San Diego in 1969-70. McCabe was finishing a master's degree in business administration.

Then he talked with retired or retiring chief petty officers who were Navy technicians with at least 20 years' experience.

The seven men who signed on "all have technical schooling equal or superior to that in civilian schools and spent their whole careers in that work," Bagley said in an interview. "We've taken the very best, not one who couldn't make more money elsewhere."

As vice presidents, he got McCabe and Jack Whittet, who was the navy's top enlisted man for five years as master chief in the Pentagon.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Look twice at a wrong match

DEAR ABBY: I just slapped my son and realized it was because he looks like his father. I am trapped in a miserable marriage with three children (all accidents.) I married more out of stubbornness than love. My parents and even friends told me not to marry him, but I wouldn't listen.

When we were going together, he'd borrow money from me and "forget" to pay it back. Now all the money is "his" money. He never takes me out, saying he can't afford it, but he always has enough to entertain his buddies.

My second baby was 3 and my third was on the way before I got a washing machine. (And then it was his mother's old one.)

He used to twist my arm, now he hits me regularly. He tells me what to do, what to say and even what to wear.

I wish I had listened, but it's too late now.

SORRY

DEAR SORRY: It may be too late for you, but it's not too late for girls presently involved with fellows who fit your husband's description.

A tip to girls "in love" with a man who everyone thinks is wrong for her: Listen and take a good long second look at him. And a third. And then a fourth.

(P.S. You didn't ask for any advice, but if you're interested in getting your head together, you're tired of being a punching bag and have had it with accidental pregnancies, write again. Have I got a letter for you!)

DEAR ABBY: Our granddaughter just completed her nursery school term at St. Edmunds Episcopal Church, and each parent was given a copy of some words of wisdom.

I hope you will find it worthy of printing in your column.

Reasoner-Walters split continues

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC has denied a published report that a decision has been reached patching up the relationship between newscasters Harry Reasoner and Barbara Walters.

The New York Post said that the co-anchors of the evening news show would stay together, with Roone Arledge promoted to head the news and documentary operations in addition to sports.

A network spokesman said Tuesday that no decision has been made on news division changes and that he did not know when one would be made. But there was speculation that ABC-TV President Fred Pierce would announce any changes when the network's affiliates meet next month.

Contract signed for services

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Department of Economic and Community Development has signed a $50,000 contract with the Cincinnati Minority Contractors Assistance Corp. to provide services to minority contractors in the Cincinnati area.

"The contract will help to develop and strengthen Cincinnati's minority contractors by providing them with management, technical, bonding and financial assistance," Duerk said.

Gay rights push sparks violence

MIAMI (AP) — Violence is marring what was supposed to be a peaceful electoral solution to Miami's growing dispute over an ordinance that forbids discrimination against homosexuals in housing and employment.

The car of a Cuban-born gay activist was firebombed Tuesday.

Another activist committed suicide last week after receiving phone threats in response to a radio show he did.

Others, on both sides of the issue, report numerous threats.

Dade County's 1.5 million residents are scheduled to decide in a June 7 referendum whether the ordinance will remain on the books.

Now there are indications the referendum may not be held. County commissioners are being urged to vote to overturn the ordinance in their April 5 meeting.

Manuel Gomez, 38, a member of the Dade County Coalition for the Humanistic Rights of Gays, took part in a Monday news conference held by supporters of the ordinance. He later appeared on a Spanish-language television station.

His car was destroyed the next day. "I know how anti-gay the Latin community is," Gomez said. "It seems I'm the first Cuban to talk openly about gayness. It (the firebombing) is a super-macho reaction. The community isn't talking about U.S.-Castro relations anymore. Now, they're just attacking homosexuals."

Gomez is mourning his friend, 28-year-old Ovidio Ramos, who killed himself last week after becoming depressed at response to the gay rights issue.

"We were on radio together and we received several injurious telephone calls from people ignorant and bigoted," Gomez said. "He got very depressed."

"I told him, 'Don't pay attention. It's incredible that people who call themselves Christians could say things like that.' The following day he didn't go to work and he killed himself Wednesday."

2 regulations take effect

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are a struggling musician trying to pay for your leased clarinet, or if you can't get credit simply because of your color or religion or because you're over 65, you may find comfort in two new consumer laws.

The Consumer Leasing Act, one of the two laws taking effect today, is designed to make leasing companies let customers know exactly the terms of their lease contracts before they sign on the dotted line.

The second new consumer protection law extends three-year-old prohibitions against credit discrimination on the basis of sex or marital status. The new amendment to the Equal Credit Opportunity Law bans credit discrimination for reasons of race, color, religion, national origin or age.

Under the leasing act, whatever you lease, whether it's a clarinet or a new car, the government says the company you deal with must specify the number, amount and due dates of the payments and their total.

The amount you're paying in taxes and other fees, information about possible penalties resulting from non-payment, and your lease-purchase rights and what both sides can do to terminate the contract must also be provided.

AFS students present program

Miss Patty Ulloa of Colombia and Jean Winger of Switzerland were the guest speakers at the March meeting of American Association of University Women. Patty, a senior at Miami Trace High School, and Jean, a senior at Washington High School, gave slide presentations of their home countries.

Patty described her country as being a mixture of the very old and the modern. Many old buildings can be seen with the extremely modern nearby. Also, there is a strange combination of traditional and modern dress in the large cities.

Jean portrayed his country as one of diversity. Four languages are spoken and there is a variety in landforms. He also showed the rich heritage of country found in old castles, museums, and the celebrating of folk festivals.

Mrs. Walter Parsley, president, conducted the business meeting. She reminded the members of the upcoming AAUW Legislative Day on March 23, in Columbus, Ohio. Also the next meeting will be a luncheon at the Chillicothe Country Club on April 2. The Chillicothe Branch will assist in the honoring of our State Division President, Mrs. Laura S. Miller of Bay Village, the guest speaker. Our own local past presidents will be special guests, also.

Mrs. Donald Ginn, chairman of the Educational Foundation Program, reported on the National Association EFP, and recommended that the local AAUW tribute to this. Mrs. Ginn was instructed to follow the local Branch's policy of contributing.

There are a few copies of the Historic Bicentennial cookbooks yet for sale. The Hostess, Mrs. Donald Foster, and her assistants, Mrs. Donald Pierce, and Miss Sara Johnson were thanked by the president. Other members present were Mrs. Jack Montgomery, Mrs. Stanley Scott, Mrs. Robert Decker, Mrs. W.O. Fullerton, Mrs. Delbert Marshall, Mrs. E.F. ## 'Roots' cast holds reunion party

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Chicken George and Kizzy didn't make it, but most of the other characters from "Roots" attended the reunion party for the people who created television's most-watched show.

The invitation for the dinner, hosted at The Bistro in Beverly Hills by executive producer David Wolper, said it was "the first opportunity for all of us and our friends to get together since that wild week we made television history."

Euphoria flowed with the wine well into the early hours Tuesday. Leslie Uggams, who played Kizzy, and Ben Vereen, who had been Kizzy's son Chicken George, were absent, but everyone present from author Alex Haley to LeVar Burton, who played the young Kunta Kinte, shared the joy. Before the dancing, Wolper conducted what resembled a witness session at a gospel meeting. Actors, writers and directors took the microphone to testify what "Roots" had meant to them.

The most moving speech was by author Haley, who told of his 12-year quest for his origins and how the TV dramatization evoked "a national, galvanic response." He concluded: "The Lord may not come when you expect him to, but he will always be on time."

A reporter asked several participants the question: "How did 'Roots' affect your lives?" Here are the responses:

Wolper: "I had expected to have an easy year after selling my company to Warner Brothers. Now I'm busier than ever trying to keep up with the response to 'Roots,' including thousands and thousands of letters. And I'm starting on 'Roots II.'"

LeVar Burton, Kunta Kinte: "It has assured me that I can do anything I want to do for the rest of my life — creatively or otherwise."

Chuck Connors, who played Massa Tom Moore: "After 23½ years in the business, producers are telling me, 'Hey, I didn't know you could act!'"

George Stafford Brown, Tom the blacksmith: "The fun was in the doing. I haven't felt the aftermath yet. They aren't writing parts for black actors yet."

Callaghan makes deal with liberals

LONDON (AP) — Indications that Prime Minister James Callaghan has made a deal for the support of the Liberal party improved his Labor government's chances of surviving a no-confidence vote in the House of Commons tonight.

Callaghan met three times Tuesday with Liberal leader David Steel in his search for votes to stave off a defeat that would force the Laborites into a general election they probably would lose.

Liberal sources described the third meeting, an hour-long, late-night session, as "detailed negotiations."

Political commentators said Callaghan was expected to conclude an agreement today giving the middle-road Liberals a say in formulating government policy in exchange for the third party's crucial 13 votes in Commons.

The 13 Liberal votes would give the government a safe majority of 17 and the promise of two and a half years more in office, until October, 1979.

The prime minister said in a television interview that he was willing to collaborate with any other parties "on a basis that preserves both our self-respect and their self-respect."

Some political commentators interpreted this to mean that Callaghan and Steel had reached a compromise that would keep Labor's economic policy intact but would guarantee the Liberals influence in shaping other policies, particularly on home rule for Scotland and Wales.

However, the deputy leader of the Liberal party, John Pardoe, said he thought an agreement was doubtful.

"We're asking for certain specific things which Mr. Callaghan feels he cannot give," Pardoe said.

The Times of London said there was a growing belief in political circles that the government would scrape through.

The no-confidence motion was introduced last week by Conservative party leader Margaret Thatcher after the government suffered a 230-0 defeat on a procedural motion to avert a vote on government spending cuts opposed by left-wing Laborites.

Etiquette remains part of life

CINCINNATI (AP) — Although it no longer takes 70 pages to describe the correct way to get through a dinner party, etiquette is still very much a part of the American way of life, according to an expert on the subject.

"Etiquette is no longer just a case of what you ought to do, but it's more practical now," said Alice Vestal, a librarian at the University of Cincinnati, who recently wrote an article on the subject for the Cincinnati Historical Society.

"People are still concerned with the proper thing to do for certain occasions. After all, all etiquette is doing to others what you want others to do to you."

Sometimes doing unto others became quite a chore, Mrs. Vestal said.

During the late 19th century, etiquette books became increasingly geared for the middle and upper classes and developed ever-more complicated rituals.

"In some of the books, there was considerable discussion about which corner of the calling card should be folded down and in one book, it took 70 pages to discuss getting through a dinner party," Mrs. Vestal said.

"In those days women did not work, and were presumed to be interested in this sort of thing. So they became very much involved in the ritual of etiquette."

"Nowadays, women are supposed to work—either at the office or doing volunteer work. It's simply not possible to have elaborate rituals, so etiquette has become much more practical."

The role of women was not the only force behind the change in trends of etiquette, Mrs. Vestal said.

Nationalism during the early 1800s

caused Americans to thumb their noses at the European social graces.

One book found European styles of behavior as being "corrupted by aristocracy and not at all suited to a land of equality."

The etiquette rules that governed life during America's first century were often deeply grounded in practicality.

These rules dealt with bathing (one pint of water used daily); dress, (undergarments were to be changed twice a week in summer) and smoking.

One manual asked: "would any man like to kiss a lady with a quid in her cheek and her lips running over with the poisoned and poisoning saliva?"

Although many of the rules of etiquette were aimed at women, men were also very much a part of the rules of society, Mrs. Vestal said.

During February

Blazes, other incidents cause $24,000 in damage

Forty-four fires and other related incidents caused an estimated $24,685 in damage in Washington C.H. and Union Township during February.

The monthly report prepared by Washington C.H. Fire Chief Maynard L. (Joe) Denen disclosed 39 of the fire incidents were in the city and five in Union Township.

Damage in Washington C.H. totaled $4,185 and the estimate in Union Township was $20,500.

Firemen investigated a total of five building fires, three in Washington C.H. and two in Union Township, during the month.

Denen reported that hazardous conditions checked by firemen were topped by 16 gas leaks or spills. Others included four incidents of short electrical equipment, three excessive heat situations and one carbon monoxide check.

Local firemen were also summoned six times for smoke or odor removal and twice to discontinue water service.

"Good intent" calls included in Denen's report were two smoke scares in the city and in Union Township and one incident in the city when steam, or another gas, was mistaken for smoke. One miscellaneous "good intent" call was also checked.

One false call (a system malfunction) was reported in Union Township during the month.

Regular firefighters on duty responding to emergency runs were 161 in the city and 23 in Union Township; regular firefighters off duty were 40 and 16; volunteers responding were 56 and 24; the total average volunteer response per fire was 1.43 and 4.80; the total average off duty regular response per fire was 1.02 and 3.20 and the total average regular and volunteer response per fire was 6.58 and 12.60.

Fire department equipment worked a total of 30.15 hours during the month, 22.60 in the city and 7.55 hours in the township. Fire equipment traveled 111.2 miles during February, 53.3 in Washington C.H. and 57.9 in Union Township.

One fireman was injured while battling a blaze during the month, the report stated.

Cardinal kidnaped, murdered

BRAZZAVILLE, Congo Republic (AP)— Emile Cardinal Biayenda, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Brazzaville, was kidnaped and murdered by three persons Tuesday night, the government announced today.

A communique issued by the ruling military committee of the Congolese Workers' party gave no details and no indication of the identity of the killers.

In Rome, a Vatican spokesman expressed "profound consternation" at the assassination of the African cardinal. Vatican sources said Cardinal Biayenda was the last official to visit President Marien Ngouabi before he was assassinated last Friday.

Radio Brazzaville announced Tuesday that former President Alphonse Massamba-Debat, whom Ngouabi overthrew in 1968, had confessed to organizing a plot to kill Ngouabi and regain control of the government.

Cardinal Biayenda, 50, was born in Mpangala, near Brazzaville, in what was then the French Congo. He was ordained a priest in 1958 and became archbishop of Brazzaville in 1971. Pope Paul VI made him a cardinal in 1973.

The cardinal is the second African archbishop to die a violent death this year. The Anglican archbishop of Uganda, Janani Luwum, was killed in February shortly after he was arrested on charges of plotting against President Idi Amin.

Middle Bass Island on Lake Erie was at one time the holiday retreat of United States Presidents Rutherford B. Hayes, Grover Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison and William Howard Taft.—AP

Zoning restrictions targeted by bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Restrictive zoning ordinances that keep homes for retarded citizens out of residential areas would be knocked out by the state under a bill now under Senate study.

The bill drew an overflow crowd of about 200 Tuesday night as the Senate Education and Health Committee started hearing testimony.

Sen. J. Timothy McCormack, D-31 Euclid, said the crowd consisted of persons from all over Ohio who deplore the fact that many communities allow the mentally retarded—or developmentally disabled, in legal terminology—to live in "dumps."

His bill, he said, provides an alternative to state institutionalization for thousands of developmentally disabled citizens.

"This would be accomplished by prohibiting discriminatory zoning restrictions as they apply to residential care facilities for the developmentally disabled," McCormack told the committee.

Society today, he said, often has ignored the problems of retarded citizens, especially after they have grown into adulthood, to 40 or 50 years of age, and had their own parents die off.

McCormack said "good faith" efforts are being made in some communities to properly house retarded citizens but those making the effort "are turned down or discouraged before reaching city council chambers. Among these are Delaware, Mansfield, Pataskala, Trumbull County, Portage County, Zanesville and New Philadelphia," he said.

He added: "Unfortunately, some communities have outrightly prohibited the location of these homes in their neighborhoods. The most recent case of this outright prohibition was in a major Cleveland suburb, Lakewood."

Propose personal alarms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— A design engineer, who recently received his master's degree at Ohio State University, has proposed development of a battery-powered personal alarm system to aid the handicapped.

A conceptual model for the personal alarm system was developed by Douglas E. Bachman in his work toward the degree in industrial design.

Bachman said in his thesis that the system would employ a collar-type apparatus which, when activated by certain neck movements, transmits a signal to a separate alarm unit.

The device, to be powered by a small battery, would send a radio signal to a secondary unit. The second unit would sound an alarm, Bachman said, which would let others know someone needs help.

"There is a trend toward greater independence among the handicapped," Bachman said.

More often, Bachman said, the severely handicapped are living and working in the community. Away from a sheltered environment, they face the hazard of an accident occurring when there is no help nearby, he said.

Bachman said he interviewed 40 handicapped individuals and found they shared a common concern over the need to obtain emergency help.

"Their sense of independence was tempered by the realization that they could become virtually helpless in certain situations," he said.

The collar device would allow those without control of their hands or arms to signal for help.

Bachman said he is looking into the possibility of manufacturing the device which would weigh six ounces or less.

He said he has not yet produced a prototype.

Small crimes pay off big

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — Bill Davidson has learned that small crimes can pay big dividends. He became the beneficiary of a $200,000 check from LaGrande, Ore., last week — for speeding. Davidson was ticketed several weeks ago for speeding in the eastern Oregon community and paid a $17 fine. The original fine was reduced when it went through Oregon's court system and he should have been reimbursed $7. But last Thursday, when his wife picked up the mail, she found a check for $200,000 from Oregon. "We just laughed when we saw it," Mrs. Davidson said Monday. "We never thought of trying to cash it. My husband took it right down to our bank manager, who also thought it was pretty funny." The county clerk in Oregon was not aware of the error until a reporter brought it to her attention.

Rotarians get economic forecast

Washington C.H. Rotary Club members received an economic forecast during their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday in the Country Club.

Pat Campbell, an assistant vice president and research director for the Ohio Company, told Rotarians that the nation's economic outlook for the remainder of 1977 is quite favorable.

The devastating 1977 winter will definitely "leave its mark on the economy" and has been the reason for recent caution in the stock market, Campbell explained.

The investment firm official said that the Carter administration has not been in office "long enough to get much accomplished." He also said he believed that President Carter's proposed economic stimulus package which provides for $50 rebates "will not mean very much."

The future of the nation's economy depends primarily on the type of national energy policy the Carter administration presents, he said.

One factor affecting the economy's lack of expansion during the past three years has been government borrowing, Campbell pointed out. He said that since 1974 the government, through borrowing, has competed with private corporations for the American dollar and has crowded the corporations out of the market.

Campbell reviewed with Rotary Club members some predictions concerning the economy he has reached through research. He said:

- the economy will do well during the remainder of the year despite government meddling;
- that labor costs will increase only about four per cent which could possibly hold the inflationary rate at five per cent;
- that there will be no drastic increase in the cost of living index;
- that banks currently have ample reserves for loan purposes and that interest rates will continue low; and
- that the Dow Jones average will increase in coming months.

He also pointed out that in recent months consumer and government spending have increased. New housing construction has also increased. He also predicted an increase in automobile sales.

The meeting was conducted by club president Dr. George Pommert. The program was arranged by Philip Moseley.

Guests were Andy Lachat with his father, John Lachat, David Louis with his father, Dr. John Louis, Allen Kraus with Al Heer, John Meriweather with Dr. Robert Anderson and Stig Karsgaard, of Sweden, with Rollo M. Marchant. Mark Tubbs of Miami Trace High School was a student guest. Visiting Rotarians were Art Dick, of Mount Sterling, Darrell French and Dan Drake, both of Wilmington, and James Ganger, of Greenfield.

Woman, 88, only jogs mile per day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Eula Weaver isn't as young as she used to be, so she's reduced her daily regimen of jogging to just one mile a day. After all, she is 88.

When it rains, and she can't jog the full mile around a high school track near her suburban Santa Monica home, she mounts the stationary bicycle in her living room and pedals 10 miles or so.

She also goes to a local gym three times a week and pedals 10 miles before dinner.

Mrs. Weaver suffered a stroke a decade ago and was nearly paralyzed.

"I could hardly walk at all," she said, explaining the effects of the stroke combined with arthritis in her hands and knees.

Doctors gave her two choices — spend the rest of her life as an invalid, being hand-fed and clothed, or get out of her rocking chair and start walking again, no matter how painful.

It didn't take her long to decide. She vowed she would "try everything in this world to get back to normal."

Following her doctor's advice, she started slowly, walking gingerly at first, pushing herself even though it hurt, and deadening some of the pain with pills.

She moved from Illinois to southern California to be near her grandson, went on a strict health-oriented diet and started running. Soon, she was jogging two miles a day.

Mrs. Weaver was induced in 1975 to enter the National Senior Olympics held in Irvine, 50 miles south of Los Angeles.

"I jogged there three years and got six gold medals, one for Saturday and one for Sunday (each year)," she said.

Hitskip checked

The Washington C.H. Police Department is investigating a hitskip accident which occurred between 12 noon and 4:45 p.m. on the Sugar Creek Packing Co. parking lot in the industrial park.

Ruth Ayers, of Bloomingburg, told police officers that when she returned to her car, she discovered it had been damaged.

ReaLemon court hassle becoming more fascinating

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The ReaLemon case gets more fascinating. Now the U.S. Commerce Department argues that an opinion by a Federal Trade Commission judge could result in "palming off" goods on an unsuspecting public.

Not only that, it suggested, but the opinion by the FTC's chief administrative law judge, if left standing, might change common law, weaken trademarks and conceivably even promote a monopoly.

All this about that little green bottle of reconstituted lemon juice that almost every shopper has seen on grocery store shelves. It's in almost every one of them; it is overwhelmingly successful, dominating some markets.

That's part of the problem. Last September, Judge Daniel H. Hanscom of the FTC ruled that Borden Inc., whose product it is, unlawfully maintained a monopoly in the reconstituted lemon juice market.

He said Borden should license its competitors.

In his opinion this could be accomplished by having Borden accept a royalty of one-half of one per cent. For that price, competitors too could make and sell ReaLemon, and even use the name Borden to prove it.

Borden officials were aghast. They denied they used discriminatory pricing and unfair promotional tricks to damage the market for others. In effect, they said the product won its dominance on quality alone.

At any rate, they added, it was unfair of Hanscom to limit the market as he had. ReaLemon, said Borden, competed not just with other reconstituted lemon juices, but with fresh lemons, lemon extract and the like.

The Commerce Department looked at the decision for a few months and on March 7 intervened in the case, which still must be decided by the full commission. It seemed concerned mainly that trademarks could be damaged.

"The administrative law judge's initial decision," it noted, "orders the compulsory licensing of the ReaLemon trademark based on a precedent of compulsory patent licensing." But, it said, a patent isn't a trademark.

Unlike trademarks, "patents are government grants, provided for by the Constitution, which give inventors the right to exclude others from making, using, or selling their inventions for 17 years," said the department, which regulates both.

"Conversely, trademarks are acquired by using the mark in commerce and represent the goodwill accorded to the owner of the mark by consumers," it said.

A patent is a government grant. A trademark is established by the owner of the mark and receives government protection to prevent the public from becoming confused or deceived. But licensing a trademark would do just that, it said.

The basic function of the trademark is to indicate the origin of a product, the Commerce Department brief continued, and to do this the trademark proprietor must have exclusive right to the mark.

Find flaws in measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — At its first hearing on a House-passed mechanics' lien bill, the Senate Judiciary Committee uncovered Tuesday what some members described as a major flaw.

The House version, in a definition section, permits liens to be filed against the owners of new, previously unoccupied homes, and those not using their newly acquired homes for their personal residence, after the full purchase price has been paid.

Rep. John D. Thompson Jr., D-15 Cleveland, said the language apparently was unintentional in his House measure which seeks to protect homeowners from having to pay a second time for prior construction or repair work.

Sen. Michael Schwarzwald, D-15 Columbus, vice chairman of the judiciary committee, said he would offer an amendment to correct the House version. Thompson said he had no objection.

Hearings on the proposal, similar to one vetoed last year by Gov. James A. Rhodes, will continue next week.

Major bills advance in Assembly

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Bills affecting schools, supermarkets, license plates and elections advanced in the legislature Tuesday.

The Senate approved 33-0 and sent the House a bill that helps school districts work out legal problems that resulted from this winter's school closings.

Senators added their approval to a House measure that increases guarantees for college student loans from 90 to 100 per cent, and makes nonresident students eligible for the program.

It goes back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments.

Otherwise, key actions came in subcommittees.

A subcommittee of the House Commerce and Labor Committee reached agreement on a once-vetoed bill that requires individual marking of items in supermarkets switching to computer pricing codes.

Also in the House, a highways subcommittee recommended approval of a widely debated bill that revamps Ohio's auto license plate distribution system and permits purchase by mail for a $1.50 extra fee.

Across the Statehouse, an elections subcommittee worked on its final draft of an election reform bill that would permit election day registration of voters and call for other changes making it easier to vote.

Buoyed by President Carter's endorsement of the concept last weekend, sponsoring Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, said Ohioans would be allowed to vote after showing acceptable identification such as a driver's license, if his bill passes.

Carter's endorsement was for federal legislation that would provide for virtually the same thing except it would only cover presidential, vice presidential and congressional balloting.

Sen. M. Morris Jackson, D-21 Cleveland, carried the school closing legislation which enables school districts to cite weather as well as fuel shortages as a legal reason for halting classes up to 15 days a year.

An earlier measure, enacted at the height of the winter freeze, provided the waiver for fuel shortages only, and didn't make allowances for later pleas from rural areas that snowed under highways often were as much a problem as gas or fuel oil.

Sen. Harry Meshe, D-33 Youngstown, said broadening of the college loan program will make from $10 million to $20 million in new loan money available next year. Last year, 21,000 Ohio students borrowed $31 million from the student loan commission, he said.

A Senate amendment provides, in addition to the 100 per cent guarantee, some added incentive for Ohio's banks and lending institutions to participate in the program.

It says that no bank, savings and loan, or other lending institution can be a depository for interim state funds unless they offer the loans. Sponsors said about 20 per cent of the lenders now holding state funds currently do not participate in the program.

Social Security ruling a landmark

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has told Congress it can pass laws that treat women differently from men — sometimes.

The test, the nation's highest court said in a pair of recent rulings on Social Security laws, is what purpose Congress has in mind.

Here's how a slim majority of the court's nine members sees it:

If the differing treatment is rendered to help compensate for past discrimination suffered by working women, it's constitutional.

If it is ordered "with no more substantial justification than the archaic and overbroad generalizations or old notions" about women's role in the family and on the job, it's unconstitutional.

The distinction is more than just words. It has meant and will continue to mean billions of dollars to millions of people.

Three weeks ago, the court struck down amendments to the Social Security Act that require a widower and the husband of a retired woman to prove he was dependent on his wife in order to collect benefits accrued during her working career.

No such requirement faced widows or wives of retired men. The court voted 5 to 4 that Congress couldn't justify the difference.

"To withstand constitutional challenge ... classifications by gender must serve important governmental objectives," the court's majority said. Women's right to equal protection under the law was violated because although they paid as much Social Security taxes as men, their taxes weren't buying as much protection for their spouses, the majority said.

However, in an unsigned unanimous decision handed down Monday, the court looked at another discrepancy in how Social Security laws treat the sexes and gave its blessing.

The court upheld a part of the law in effect from 1956 to 1972 that allowed retired women to collect slightly higher benefits than men with the same earnings record.

"The legislative history is clear that the differing treatment of men and women was not the accidental byproduct of a traditional way of thinking about families, but rather was deliberately enacted to compensate for particular disabilities suffered by women," the court said.

The old provision was challenged by a retired New York man who is still receiving less money each month than if he were a woman. He said that when Congress equalized the payments in 1972, it should have made them retroactive. Lower federal courts agreed with him.

The Supreme Court disagreed. "That Congress changed its mind ... does not constitute an admission that its previous policy was invidiously discriminatory," it said.

Still confused about the distinctions? You're in good company.

The four court members who dissented in the first case — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices William H. Rehnquist, Harry A. Blackmun and Potter Stewart — registered their delight to be on the winning side in the second.

They admitted, however, that they found it "somewhat difficult to distinguish" the court's conclusions in the two cases.

Katangan rebels gain

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Katangan rebels appear to be firmly entrenched and fighting hard in southern Zaire despite government claims of success against them.

It was learned Tuesday that the invading exiles from neighboring Angola apparently have regained control of Kasaji, a town 130 miles west of Kolwezi, the copper mining center in southern Shaba province, the former Katanga.

Kasaji was first reported taken by the invaders on March 14 after heavy fighting in which President Mobutu Sese Seko's forces were estimated to have suffered about 200 casualties. The government claimed on Saturday that its troops had recaptured the town, which is nearly halfway between the Angolan border and the Kolwezi mines, the likely immediate target of the invasion.

Copper from Shaba is Zaire's biggest export, and about half of the U.S. supply of cobalt, a byproduct of the copper mines, comes from the province.

The Katangans also were reported still holding the towns of Dilolo, on the border west of Kasaji and Kolwezi; Sandao and Kesenge, and Kapanga, 155 miles northeast of Dilolo and 45 miles from the border, despite government claims of "massive bombing raids" that were driving the invaders back into Angola.

Foreign observers doubted these claims, estimating that Zaire's air force at the most has only eight operational jets and that they carry only two rockets each.

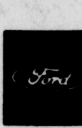

The invasion force is estimated to consist of 2,000 Katangan troops who fled to Angola after losing a war for the independence of their province from the former Belgian Congo in the 1960s. Five thousand more Katangan troops are reported still in Angola.

Zaire's 25,000-man army is handicapped by fuel shortages, poor communications and long supply lines. According to one report, the government owes its troops in some areas two months pay but has managed to pay those in Shaba.

The United States, which has a $35-million military aid program for Zaire, has shipped Mobutu's government two plane loads of so-called nonlethal equipment since the invasion, including spare parts for transport planes, troop carriers, rations, uniforms and medical supplies. Belgium has sent ammunition and light weapons.

Earthworms next gourmet's delight?

SEATTLE (AP) — When you peddle earthworms as food fit for humans, there's nowhere to go but up. Sure enough, Ronald Gaddie is reporting progress in his campaign to popularize the dish.

For a second year, Gaddie's North American Bait Farms Inc. is sponsoring a nationwide worm recipe contest. Gaddie says the number of entries has soared over last year — from 200 to 500.

Last year's winner was Earthworm Applesauce Surprise Cake.

"Try 'em, you'll like them," said Gaddie in a telephone interview from Centralia, Wash., where he teaches classes to prospective earthworm raisers at Pacific Northwest Bait and Ecology. That firm sells worms to Gaddie's company, which is based in Ontario, Calif.

Worms "taste like shredded wheat," said Gaddie. "I like them best in oatmeal cookies, but I've eaten them with rice, sprinkled on top of salads rather than bacon bits, with scrambled eggs and with steak and gravy."

For those concerned about nutrition, Gaddie says earthworms are 72 per cent protein and less than one per cent fat. For those who like the terminology of haute cuisine, there is always the name "ver de Terre."

Mary Croslin, who owns Pacific Northwest Bait and Ecology, is raising 5.3 million worms in beds filled with manure.

"It's kind of shocking the first time you eat one, but now I don't even think about it," she said. When salted they taste like jerky, she said.

Gaddie said he once ate worms every day for three months.

"They didn't hurt me," he added. The only way he doesn't particularly like them is raw.

"I know some people who suck them like spaghetti, but I could never do that," he says.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT

AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, silent until now about his career and the Watergate scandal that drove him from office in 1974, starts talking today for history, television and money.

And British talk show star David Frost, whose exclusive interviews with him will air in May, calls the talks he's taping with Nixon easily the toughest and most challenging task of his entire career.

"Particularly since Richard M. Nixon is renowned to be an incredibly private person, and we want to see the real Richard Nixon, find out the answer to that enigma," Frost said.

Among those who've helped Frost prepare for the Nixon meetings are Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward, the Washington Post reporters whose work broken open the Watergate story that led to Nixon's resignation.

Frost, whose company opened an office in Washington, D.C., last July to research the Nixon story, says Woodward and Bernstein "are but two of hundreds of people who've given us their help."

"We've literally talked to hundreds of people, had a fulltime staff of four working since July, and they've talked to hundreds of people who participated in the Nixon saga — for, against and in the middle."

Starting today, Frost is to interview Nixon 12 times, two hours each time, with the last interview on April 20. He says they're working at a private home near Nixon's house in San Clemente.

Neither Frost nor his production company, Paradine Productions, will say what the 64-year-old former president is being paid for the interviews. But published reports put the fee at around $600,000.

At least 118 television stations in the United States will air the interviews, to be edited down to four 90-minute programs shown in sequence on May 4, 12, 19 and 25, says Syndicast Services, the company selling the show.

And, says Marvin Minoff, Frost's business partner, the Mutual Broadcasting System has bought radio rights to the Nixon interviews and will feed them to MBS affiliates for airing the same nights as the telecasts.

Frost, 37, met with Nixon two weeks ago to iron out technical details of the interview-taping. He described him as appearing "remarkably resilient," as he first found him on Aug. 9, 1975, when Nixon signed his contract with Frost, a year to the day after resigning from office.

"It was as if he went through that enormous emotional decompression and has come to terms with the most dramatic rise and fall in American political history," Frost said.

Asked to describe Nixon's mood, he said: "Composed, I suppose, is the best word, because he's about to embark on these 12 sessions of two-hour interviews, which are a tremendous undertaking, really."

"I'm a television man and I've never done 12 two-hour sessions."

According to Minoff, the first televised show will deal with Nixon's last days in office, the second with his foreign policies, the third with his domestic policies and last with Watergate.

New idea allows MT students to visit other SCOL schools

By KATHI JENKINS
Visitation Day is a new idea proposed by the principals in the South Central Ohio League. The SCOL Student Council has organized and planned the SCOL Visitation Day.

Spaulding and Pam East will be at Teays Valley.

Hillsboro will host Bruce Fennig, Sherri Hollbrook, Debbie Thompson and Kim Bryant.

At Greenfield will be Brant Dunn, Kevin Stockwell, Joyce Eggleton and Lisa Cremins.

Finally, attending Madison Plains will be Belinda Hammond, Ramona Rodgers, Jona St. Clair and Todd Delay.

To promote good feelings and cooperation between the league schools is the purpose of the event on March 30. It is hoped that by learning what life is like in other schools, the participating students will gain knowledge and ideas that may prove to be useful in their own schools.

The visiting students will each spend the entire day with his own host student. During study halls and lunch periods they will have the opportunity to visit other areas of the building.

The students from Miami Trace, who will serve as hosts and hostesses, are Tami Bowman, Curt Ware, Marilyn Merritt, Johanna Price, Terri Holguin, Toni Penwell, Bridgett Meredith, Mark VanZant, Dale Parker, Brian Zurface, Kathy Hanners, Lauren Coil, Steve Coe, Michelle Deskins, Scott Martin, Sandy Hughes, Jon Sagar, Art Schlichter, Mark Smithson, Lynne Acton, Barb Johnson, Tony Walters, Tammy Payton, Kim Conley, Pam Doyle, Christy Stockwell, Joe Black and Terry Helsel.

The students attending Circleville from Miami Trace are Neil Spears, Vicki Bennett, Tammy Arnold and Scott Grooms.

Christy Tarbutton, Linda Merritt, Karen Kiger and Todd Tarbutton will be guests at Washington Senior High School.

Those who will be at Wilmington are Denise Carpenter, Kathy Jacobs, Heidi Stockwell, and Jill Dorn.

Her future plans are to be independent, work and live life to the fullest. She advises underclassmen to be themselves, don't follow the crowd just to be popular and to do what is right for themselves.

Sara Benson is our next senior and she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Benson. She resides at 1530 Ohio 41-S.

Her college prep courses include Advanced Math, Typing II, Physiology, British Literature, Symphonic Band, Sociology, Psychology, Government and Composition.

She likes to raise and take care of her pets and enjoys track and softball among other sports.

Sara has been accepted to Ohio State

University where she will major in computer science in the fall.

Being a band member the two years Miami Trace's football team brought home the gold football was the highlight of her years at Trace.

"Get on down and do as much as you can now, because it gets away from you just too fast." This is Tony Walters' comment to underclassmen. He is the son of Mrs. John Marcum and Mr. Sonny Walters and lives at 4511 Miami Trace Road near Greenfield.

His courses are Government, Journalism, Speech, Family Living, and Chemistry.

Tony has been in 4-H for eight years, on the football and track teams, is president of the Varsity M Club, treasurer of the senior class and a member of student council.

She is taking Chemistry, Vo-Ag, Algebra II, Government, Composition and Typing in preparation for going to Ohio State University in the fall. Beth wants to major in some field of agriculture there.

Beth found being in FFA and meeting new people highlighted her years at Miami Trace.

Chorus members important in 'Brigadoon' production

By CHERYL BLUE
Some people might think the chorus is an unimportant part of a musical. Not so, in the musical "Brigadoon." This year's chorus is practicing eight songs in four, five, and even six part harmony. The chorus is fairly small so everyone must know their part down to the last "la".

Not only does the chorus practice singing, but they also practice pantomiming. It is very important that everyone reacts to each other by the use of facial expressions. If this is not done, then the chorus would turn into a group of statues.

There are many small solo parts in the musical this year. The following member of the chorus have special solos: Brad Maust, Mark Smithson,

A select group of girls were chosen from the main chorus to be in the special girl's chorus. The special girl's chorus includes: Tammy Payton, Lynne Acton, Alisa Hughes, Kathi Jenkins, Marilyn Creamer, Lisa Melvin, Brenda Joseph and Cheryl Blue.

John finds driving, working on cars, going to movies and parties as his favorite pastimes.

To underclassmen his advice is, "Get the most you can out of everyday, because you only get one chance."

Faine tops All-Ohio, Class A

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Joe Faine, twice all-state and Ohio's Class A Player of the Year, is one of those do-everything performers in small school boys high school basketball.

"He plays anywhere he wants on the floor," said one sports writer who has followed Faine's career.

The 6-foot-4 senior from Rawson Cory-Rawson has averaged more than 30 points in gaining a first team All-Ohio berth two straight seasons. He also averages double figures in rebounding and sank 51 per cent of his floor shots this winter.

Sharing the top Class A honors with

Faine was State Class A Coach of the Year Dan Wendell, who guided Morral Ridgedale to top ranking in The Associated Press state poll. Ridgedale won 16 of 17 regular season games.

One of Wendell's aces, 6-1 junior Brad Weston, joined Faine on the eight-player first unit, selected on the recommendations of a statewide panel of sports writers and broadcasters. Weston averaged 21.4 points.

Weston is the third brother to make first team all-state at Ridgedale. The previous ones were Dan, who went on to Ohio State, and Randy, a 1976 allstar now performing for Ashland College.

Another junior who made the first team this time was 6-3 Baxter Jones of Windham.

The trio was joined by 6-5 Jim Hoops of Hamler Henry, 5-11 Steve Cikach of Cuyahoga Heights, 6-1 Kevin O'Dell of Arcanum and 6-3 Ed Andes of Shadyside, all seniors.

On the second team were 6-3 Dennis Nau of Caldwell, 6-3 Jay Meyer of Covington, 6-4 Mike Rengert of Cardington, 6-6 Dave Smith of Old Fort, 6-3 Joe Butcher of Stewart Federal-Hocking, 6-4 Clay Dill of LaGrange Keystone, 6-2 Jeff Rupp of Creston Norwayne and 6-4 Chip Brauer of Racine Southern.

Dill and Rupp are juniors on the otherwise all-senior No. 2 unit.

Third team selections were 6-2 Jeff Jahn of Sparta Highland, 6-2 Steve Rossi of Middletown Fenwick, 6-3 Steve Burton of Yellow Springs, 6-1 Jeff Chandler of Freeport Lakeland, 6-foot Jack Numbers of Strausburg, 6-3 Jack Braidic of Sebring, 5-11 Allan Young of Fairport Harbor Harding and 6-2 Jon Williams of Oak Hill. Braidic is the lone junior and the rest are seniors.

Sides lining up in Rose dispute

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Whether it ends in happy conciliation or painful divorce, Pete Rose's salary stand-off with the Cincinnati Reds is unique in the club's storied history.

Allies and enemies are lining up to take sides for or against Rose, baseball's best known love-hate figure since Ty Cobb.

A fan in Cincinnati took out an ad in the Cincinnati Enquirer, urging Rose's backers to flood the Reds' front office with a show of support.

A Kettering, Ohio man mailed Rose a blank ticket application, explaining that he was passing up seats at Riverfront Stadium in 1977 because he was opposed to "a bunch of millionaire ballplayers."

A nationally-known sports columnist from Boston, where they booed Rose in 1975, said the tough-minded hitting star is worth whatever he's asking.

An elderly lady living in a nursing home in Covington, Ky. sent Rose a religious pamphlet lecturing on the evils of greed.

Bundles of mail addressed to Rose pour into the Reds' spring training camp daily. Some are angry, some are in agreement, and many others simply request an autograph.

"My father said you are going to be traded to Philadelphia, will you autograph this before you go?" wrote a preteen from Texas.

Dave Glick, of Kettering, Ohio, saved the subtleties.

"$400,000. Boy, that's a lot of money. $2000 per hit, if you reach your annual goal. About $82 for every swing of the bat. Put Dave Revering on third and promise him one tenth of that salary. I can identify with the struggle, the success and the commensurate regard," said Glick.

Ray Fitzgerald, of the Boston Globe, wrote: "I have gone on record as saying that ball clubs should draw the line and tell the players to 'play for what we offer you or go run an elevator somewhere.' Having said that, I would now like to say what whatever Pete Rose is asking, management ought to give to him."

Bulls whip LA Lakers

AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Bulls continue their amazing surge, and part of the reason for their recent success is their early season failure.

"We're not playing any differently now, except that we're a little more mature and the shots are starting to fall in," said Chicago Coach Ed Badger, whose Bulls beat the Los Angeles Lakers 102-86 Tuesday night for their sixth victory in a row and 17th in the last 18 National Basketball Association games.

"We have so much confidence now,

it's hard to believe we lost so many games," said captain Norm Van Lier of the Bulls, who got off to a 2-14 start this season. "I think the difference is that we know what we want to do and if we goof up a play, we don't suddenly fall apart."

The Bulls did not goof up many plays against the Lakers, sending the crowd of 21,046 — the biggest pro basketball attendance in Chicago history — home happy.

Chicago pulled away in the third period when Wilbur Holland, Mickey Johnson and Scott May combined for 21 points, putting the Bulls ahead 76-63.

Jackson not accustomed to the faces

Yankee arrival ready to leave?

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Sub-torrid topics from the sub-tropics:

Whispers persist that discord runs deep in the camp of the gold-crusted New York Yankees, and one source insists that Reggie Jackson, the $2.9 million hired hand, is so fed up he would like to be traded. A probe reveals a slight exaggeration.

Some feathers were ruffled at the Team Superstars television extravaganza in Hawaii earlier this month. Jackson wears two hats — he's a Yankee and a commentator for ABC, which staged the show.

Reggie got miffed with some of his new teammates. As the Cincinnati Reds clobbered the Yanks in rowing, cycling and tug o' war, just as they had in the World Series. Reggie felt his mates were "dogging it."

Some sharp words were exchanged.

MT sponsors game with WCH lettermen

Basketball on the high school level is not dead, yet. Miami Trace and Washington C.H. will play each other once again.

This time, however, John Denen and Art Schlichter won't suit up because the Miami Trace Varsity M Club will play the Washington C.H. Letterman's Club.

The game will take place at MTHS on Thursday, Mar. 24. The admission price will be $1 for adults and 75 cents for students.

Thurman Munson and Graig Nettles became involved. Some Yankees gave Reggie the brushoff in his microphone duties. It was a bit messy.

But George Steinbrenner II, the Yankee owner, refuses to let sores fester. Ten days ago he called the principals together for a luncheon faceoff. "Everything's been ironed out — all's fine now," Steinbrenner said. "The Yankees' prime purpose is to play baseball. They were told specifically not to take chances, not to get hurt in that TV show."

Everybody's talking about the sharp contrast in the personalities of professional Walt Alston, who managed the Los Angeles Dodgers for close to a quarter of a century, and his successor, Tom Lasorda. Alston didn't say 100 words during an entire season. The ebullient Lasorda spills that many while putting on his socks.

Lasorda must have Don Rickles or Henny Youngman doing his lines.

"People are always saying my wife and I don't go dancing any more," Lasorda says. "That's a lie. We go dancing six days a week. I go dancing every Monday, Wednesday and Friday and she goes dancing every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday."

How Satchel Paige's description of old baseball has changed: "Today's ball players reach for the Wall Street Journal instead of The Sporting News."

March 5, the day Jimmy Connors met Ilie Nastase in the so-called "World Championship of Tennis" was also the day of the Romanian earthquake. Promoters went to great pains to shield

Ilie from the news of the tragedy before the match.

At breakfast, however, Connors yelled across the room, "Hey, Ilie, your house has been knocked down."

"What you mean?" the puzzled Romanian asked.

"Didn't you know?" Connors persisted. "Earthquake in Bucharest. Here's half a buck. Call over there for yourself."

A shaken Nastase learned the news and lost the match.

And tennis is supposed to be the gentlemanly game.

Johnny Majors, coach of the National Champion University of Pittsburgh football team who returned to his Tennessee alma mater, says Tennessee alumni have assured him: "Johnny, we're behind you 100 per cent — win or tie."

Reds cut 10 players

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have cut 10 players from their spring training roster.

Cul Tuppies were pitchers Art DeFilippis, Dan Dumoulin, Raul Ferreyra, Mike LaCoss and Mario Soto; catcher Jeff Sovern; infielders Mike Grace and Ron Oster; and outfielders Steve Henderson and Dan Norman.

Page sets Grapefruit League on fire

By BOB GREENE
AP Sports Writer
Mitchell Page is a realist. He knows that the gaudy .610 batting average he now has will not last a whole season. But the Oakland A's rookie outfielder-first baseman feels he can hit at least half that during the 1977 baseball season.

"If I play, I know I can hit," Page said after driving in one run with a triple and scoring the winning run as Oakland edged the San Diego Padres 3-2 in an exhibition game Tuesday. Acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates in a trade last week, Page has 11 hits in 18 at-bats this spring. Five of his hits have been for extra bases. In the fifth inning, with the score tied 2-2, Page walked, moved to third on Jerry Tabb's single and scored on a groundout.

In other exhibition games Tuesday, the Montreal Expos defeated the Minnesota Twins 12-8, the Philadelphia Phillies blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-0, the Detroit Tigers stopped the Boston Red Sox 6-2, the Milwaukee Brewers crushed the Cleveland Indians 15-4, the Baltimore Orioles trounced the Chicago White Sox 12-4, the St. Louis Cardinals whipped the Cincinnati Reds 10-2, the Seattle Mariners downed the California Angels 10-5, the Houston Astros nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5, the New York Mets downed the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4, the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Yankees 7-5, the San Francisco Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 7-5 and the Texas Rangers topped the Kansas City Royals 8-5.

Veteran Steve Carlton and rookie Randy Lerch combined for a three-hitter as Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh. Carlton gave up two hits in five innings, while Lerch struck out six in four innings.

A one-out double by Sandy Alomar in the ninth inning snapped a 5-5 tie and led Texas to its victory over Kansas City. Biff Pocoroba slammed a pinch-hit double in the seventh and scored the winning run on Barry Bonell's single as Atlanta won its fourth straight game.

John Montefusco hurled four hitless innings and scored San Francisco's first run after walking to lead off the Giants' three-run third. A triple by John Milner in the fifth drove in Lee Mazzilli with a tie-breaking run and leading the Mets to their first victory in three games against the American League expansion Blue Jays.

Jose Cruz drove in four runs with a homer and a triple, leading Houston over Los Angeles. Rookie Juan Bernhardt homered and tripled twice as Seattle pounded 15 hits in snapping a four-game losing streak. A three-run homer by Roger Freed and John Denny's one-hit pitching over the first five innings led St. Louis to its victory over the defending world champion Reds.

Lee May pounded out a pair of homers, driving in five runs and pacing Baltimore's victory over the White Sox. Sixto Lezcano's grand slam homer led an 18-hit Milwaukee attack that buried Cleveland. Tom Verzer followed Aurelio Rodriguez' three-run homer with a solo homer as Detroit exploded for six runs in the fourth inning. Gary Carter and Pete Mackanin smacked home runs in Montreal's 19-hit attack against Minnesota.

Hanging on Time to play, or to quit

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Say it ain't so, Joe.

Hang 'em up, Ali. C'm'on, Arthur, grab that brief case instead of a racket.

Three of America's most imposing sports figures of the last decade — Jets' quarterback Joe Namath, heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali and tennis star Arthur Ashe — have reached the fork in their remarkable careers and must make a decision: carry on or leave the stage in dignity. All apparently have chosen the ego trip. More's the pity.

Namath, 33, with knees held together by safety pins and adhesive tape, is flirting with a last hurrah as a member of the Los Angeles Rams. If he goes West — and every indication is he will — then he will go with helmet in hand, at a reduced salary and in the role of a football "designated pitcher."

The 35-year-old Ali, his old fighting

skills tarnished, his speed slowed but his mind and mouth keen as ever, has committed himself to take on some obscure Italian punching bag named Lorenzo "Rocky" Zanon in Korea next month.

It's another humpty-dumpty outing for "The Greatest."

Ashe, 33, the black policeman's son who fought the battles of racial injustice while winning highest honors on the court, has undergone an operation for a heel injury that hobbled him for years and has ended his long bachelorhood.

Now he plans to resume big time tournament tennis. It is a laudable gesture but, in our mind, a foolish one. He should make periodic appearances in the big ones — Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and even the Davis Cup — and turn his talents in another direction, perhaps as an aide to United Nations ambassador Andrew Young, his good friend.

There is something tragic about a great sports hero striving to keep alive fading glories. It is depressing to see a once mighty champion reduced to a battered, humiliated victim because he failed to heed the red signal which said, "Stop."

This was particularly true in the case of Joe Louis, the revered Brown Bomber, one of the greatest fighting machines who ever lived. He was beaten by Ezzard Charles after emerging from retirement in 1950 and then crushed in eight brutal rounds by a young Rocky Marciano in 1951.

"I didn't want to fight," Louis was to say later. "I needed the money."

Marciano went on to win the title in September, 1952, run up a record of 49 victories without defeat and retire, virtually unmarked, in April, 1956, at age 32. He died in a plane accident three years later.

Marciano, nevertheless, as did Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams and others, left his admirers an unforgettable legacy.

Pete's wife makes best of being baseball widow

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Karolyn Rose excused herself from her poolside chair to place a long distance grocery order back to Cincinnati.

"Go to Skyline Chili and pick up eight frozen chilis," she said into the motel room phone.

"Get some goetta, too, Mom" requested her 12-year-old daughter Fawn, putting in her bid for the sausage-like foodstuff popular in the Rhineland of the Midwest.

Chili, the diet of champions? If you were expecting freshfrown lobster and sword fish steaks, forget it.

Karolyn Rose is Karolyn Rose and she refuses to put on stuffy airs.

"People like me because I'm me, not because I'm Pete Rose's wife," said the out-going mother of two.

"And that's the way I try to bring up my kids, too. Fawn is into athletics. In fact, if she had her way, she would become a professional athlete. But I don't want her to make it in life on her father's name," said the attractive brunette.

"Petie is seven and baseball is the biggest thing in his life, but we've had people tell us he never says a word about who his dad is to the other kids. I'm proud of that."

Baseball widows learn early to take the good with the bad.

"Last fall, when President Ford came to town, he shook hands with Pete, turned to me and said, 'Your husband is a real good home run hitter.' I smiled and thanked him, even though he thought I was Tony Perez's wife," she said.

Baseball widows also learn to live in the background, but it's not always easy. Although she has had 14 fun-filled years around baseball, the spring of 1977 has been a painful one.

"This year's been the hardest. I lost my best friend," she said, referring to Pituka Perez, wife of former Reds first baseman Tony Perez, who was traded to the Montreal Expos in the off-season.

"People don't understand that losing long-time friends is like losing your family," said Karolyn, who has long assumed the role of den mother for Reds wives. While she feels some regret over getting too close to people, she feels it's too late to change her ways.

"I guess I've always been the mother type. I just can't see somebody new coming into town and not having a family doctor or someone to talk to. I've always told the girls they should have at least one best friend around to talk to when their husbands are gone," she said.

The baseball wife has to be mother and father to her children and "the only vacation you get together with your husband is spring training," she said.

But there are benefits, too. "I've always said baseball couples never fight in the summer. You're too happy to have him home with the kids," she said.

Racers rip Stingers

For goalie Paul Hoganson, the Indianapolis Racers' 3-1 World Hockey Association victory over the Cincinnati Stingers was super sweet.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A sheet flooring with a special moisture barrier.

Manufacturer's claim — That the barrier coat is sandwiched between the asbestos backing and the foam layer of the flooring... that it prevents discoloration due to alkali and moisture-borne fungus... that the field testing included installations in homes in Florida and California... that it comes in 6-foot and 12-foot widths and is suited to do-it-yourself installation... and that it meets federal requirements for residential and light commercial use.

THE PRODUCT — A garage door opener that operates from a car's cigarette lighter slot.

Manufacturer's claim — That the transmitter looks like a cigarette lighter and is pushed in to activate it... that an individually coded radio message opens the garage door... that it works with any door opener on the market or already installed on the garage... that the transmitting unit weighs only one ounce and has no batteries that can go dead or deteriorate in summer heat... and that the receiver can be easily connected to your present equipment.

THE PRODUCT — A series of decorator wall panels with a sculptured, cameo-like surface.

Manufacturer's claim — That the panels are made from Brazilian hardwood in the standard 4' by 8' size... that they have a duo-coated melamine finish that wipes clean with a damp cloth... that the 1/8-inch panels can be installed over any solid backing with ordinary carpenter tools... and that they can be used on accent walls, as wainscoting, alternated with mirrors, framed for effect in the kitchen or bathroom, or as a conversation piece in any room.

Manufacturer's claim — That the distinctive blue flame with which the unit operates enables the furnace to work quietly, efficiently and cleanly, producing no smoke... that no masonry chimney is required, making it possible to replace any type of heating unit, even one using a simple flue... that it is readily adaptable to air conditioning usage... and that 1,000 units were tested in the field before national marketing was begun.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1.50 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

(The sheet flooring is manufactured by Mannington Mills, Inc., Salem, N. J. 08079; the garage door opener by Mallard Manufacturing Corp., 101 Mallard Rd., Sterling, Ill. 61081; the wall panels by Marlite division, Masonite Corp., Diver, Ohio 44622; and the heating unit by Blueray Systems, Inc., 375 North Broadway, Jericho, N. Y. 11753.)

Mount Sterling boy held

Youth apprehended in school burglary

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department has apprehended a suspect in the weekend theft of food items from the Madison Mills Elementary School.

A 17-year-old Mount Sterling youth was arrested by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department Tuesday and charged with breaking and entering.

Fayette County Sheriff Donald L. Thompson said the building was entered overnight Saturday and soft drinks and pizzas were stolen from the school kitchen. Part of the stolen items were recovered by Sheriff's Sgt. William R. Crooks during the investigation, which is continuing, according to Sheriff Thompson.

The youth is currently being held in the Fayette County Juvenile Detention facility on order from the Fayette County Juvenile Court.

Sheriff's Deputy Kenneth Smith apprehended another 17-year-old youth

Tuesday. He was charged with auto theft.

Sheriff Thompson reported that his department was notified shortly after 7 a.m. that a car had driven away from a service station at I-71 and U.S. 68 in Clinton County and failed to pay for gasoline.

Deputy Smith stopped the car at I-71 and Ohio 38 and discovered the car had been stolen Monday at East Ridge, Tenn., and the youth was a runaway from North Lauderdale, Fla.

He is being held in the county juvenile detention facility pending the disposition of charges against him.

The Washington C.H. Police Department is investigating a vandalism incident which occurred in the 200 block of E. Market Street between 8 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

John Trout, 703 Pearl St., reported that a snow tire on his auto had been slit by a knife or sharp object. The tire was valued at $35.

City Council resolution to laud National Guard

A resolution commending the local unit of the Ohio Army National Guard appears on Wednesday's Washington C.H. City Council agenda.

The resolution singles out Capt. Larry Hott, commander of the local unit, and his troops for their assistance to area residents during the crippling blizzard in January.

The resolution is the only legislative item appearing on City Council's agenda for the 7:30 p.m. meeting in the basement of the Carnegie Public Library.

Although it is not mentioned on the agenda, City Council may discuss problems and complaints residents have had with water service this past winter. The topic took up the majority of the time at the last Council meeting, when it was agreed to look into the situation at the next meeting.

Rhodes inks fuel bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has signed into law an immediately effective bill assuring tractor fuel will be available to farmers to plant, produce and harvest grain, hay, and vegetable crops.

Rep. Gene Branstool, D-1 Utica, sponsored the legislation which allows the governor to reallocate fuel throughout the state to farmers in danger of losing their crops.

natural gas and fuel oil shortages.

Also signed Tuesday by the governor was another emergency measure letting county commissioners use their funds for emergency food programs to aid persons seriously affected by fuel and other weather emergencies.

Rep. Francine Panehal, D-5 Cleveland, sponsored the latter, saying Cuyahoga County has set aside $220,000 for a program providing food at 12 regional hunger centers.

Traffic Court

Two Greenfield men were found guilty of driving while intoxicated in Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Herbert R. Merritt, 34, Greenfield, was fined $400, sentenced to 20 days in jail, and had his operator's license lifted for three years by Judge John P. Case.

Merritt was arrested by Fayette County sheriff's deputies early Tuesday morning when he was driving his car on U.S. 35.

Besides the driving while intoxicated charge, Merritt was found guilty of driving while his license was under suspension. He received a $100 fine and a 10-day jail sentence on that charge.

Marion R. Baxla, 23, Greenfield, was fined $200, sentenced to three days in jail, and has his license suspended for 60 days.

Baxla was arrested on S. North Street on March 12 by Washington C.H. police officers when his car reportedly struck a parked car. The incident also left Baxla with a $25 for reckless operation.

A charge of obstructing the official business of a law officer was dropped and the costs were waived upon the requests of both attorneys.
